Foreign Intervention Sought At Tientsin As Troops Evacuate

DREADFUL BUTCHERY DISCLOSED NEAR PEIPING AND IN TUNGCHOW

Tientsin, July 31 (8.52 a.m.).

The acting Mayor of Tientsin to-day requested the intervention of the Consular Body and the forces at the command of foreign Governments in the city, in order to restore normal conditions. The Peace Preservation Corps, the official said, had evacuated Tientsin.

Scattered groups of the Peace Preservation Corps remain in the Chinese city, as a matter of fact, and negotiations await their ejection.

All is quiet at Tangku. Chinese troops have evacuated Taku and shipping is back to normal in the river mouth.

Back in Tientsin, a number of Peace Preservation Corps troops in the former Austrian concession discarded uniforms. The area is at present not policed. A body of 300 of these troops was observed marching out of the city to the southward yesterday.—Reuter.

JAPANESE "MOP UP"

Shanghai, July 31 (1.09 a.m.).

Tientsin and its vicinity had a new taste of warfare to-day as Japanese conducted "mopping up" operations and occupied the former Belgian and Russian concessions which the Chinese had seized yesterday.

The bulk of the Chinese forces have now evacuated Tientsin, but looters have appeared, adding terror to the already panicky Chinese areas.

Japanese aircraft attacked Chinese troops concentrated near the city for an hour and a half this morning, while the Japanese artillery was busy most of yesterday and continued its work to-day, shelling buildings in which it is supposed snipers are sheltering.

British troops were called out as a result of an incident near the British concession yesterday. Two Japanese cyclists, resenting a signal to dismount, drew revolvers and fired into the air, spreading panic in the neighbourhood.—Reuter.

BUTCHERY DISCOVERED

Peiping, July 31 (8.35 a.m.).
A foreign observer to-day found the bodies of 11 Chinese policemen and seven civilians in a field near Hattien village, south of Yenchiing University, all with the hands tied behind the backs. Some had been shot, but the majority were hacked to death. Two of the civilians had been decapitated.

Peace Preservation Corps men from Tungchow, encountered to the east of Peiping by this observer, declared the entire Japanese population of Tungchow, in addition to all Japanese troops there, had been annihilated during the fighting yesterday. Eventually the Peace Preservation Corps was compelled to evacuate the city owing to the activity of Japanese aircraft, but many were now returning.

SEVERE CASUALTIES

A motorized Japanese column, accompanied by a cavalry unit, clashed with Peace Preservation Corps troops between Peiping and Yenchiing yesterday. The Japanese opened fire with machine-guns and mowed down the Chinese soldiers. It is estimated that several hundreds were killed. Two thousands Japanese are now encamped at Hsiyuan Barracks.—Reuter.

JAPANESE SUCCESS

Shanghai, July 31 (12.42 a.m.).
According to despatches reaching here through Domei News Agency, Japanese troops have captured Changhsien, one of the well-fortified small towns in the Peiping area. The Japanese occupied the place at 3 p.m. yesterday, the troops of the 20th Army, which had been in garrison there, fleeing to the south.—United Press.

JAPAN'S PLANS

Shanghai, July 30.
It is reliably reported here that the Japanese Cabinet has approved military plans to be carried out in China.
Kwangtung Army troops will concentrate full fighting power to launch a big offensive on Peking, where Central Government troops have been reinforced.

Japanese naval forces will be responsible for attacking South China, particularly Amoy and Swatow thus engaging the attention of the South China military authorities and preventing them from sending reinforcements North.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

CIVILIANS FLEE

Tientsin, July 30.
After heavy bombing by Japanese planes yesterday, over a thousand Chinese refugees evacuated the Chinese City. They at first intended to take shelter in the Italian Concession but were refused admission by the Italian guards. The refugees remained in the open-air in the 2nd Special District for the night and began to move this morning to the French Concession, where they were allowed to take shelter.

R.A.F. MAN FOUND HANGED AT KAI TAK

Second Class Aircraftman B. G. Chitholli-Ellans, 22, attached to the R.A.F. establishment at Kai Tak, was found hanged in quarters last night. Police are investigating on a theory that the man took his own life.

Gambling On Localisation Of Conflict

American View Of Japanese Aims In N. China

New York, July 30.

Japan's rejection of the peace pleas of Great Britain and the United States, says the New York Times in an editorial, indicates that "Japan evidently hopes soon to present the world with another fait accompli—two more provinces 'freed' from the main body of China."

China's military preparations are still far from complete, the paper continues. The opportunism which lead Marshal Chiang Kai-shek to acquiesce in earlier concessions to Japan may again dictate a play for time, but now China's generalissimo has to take into account outraged Chinese national sentiment and the demands of the implacably anti-Japanese communists of the north-west.

The Japanese apparently assume that Marshal Chiang, for all his bold words, will remain aloof from the struggle, the Times goes on.

The national sentiment of the Chinese masses, however passionately inflamed, can do little more than ineffectively sabotage Japan's occupation of Hopei and Chahar. Thus Japan is gambling upon localising the conflict, the Times concludes.—Reuter.

YUGO-SLAVIA CHURCH DISPUTE

Belgrade, July 30.

There were further demonstrations against the Government by members of the Orthodox Church to-day, owing to the Cabinet's approval of the Concordat with the Roman Catholic Church.

No members of the Cabinet attended the funeral of the Patriarch of the Orthodox Church, who died on Tuesday, as all the members have been excommunicated by the Church.—Reuter Bulletin.

PARLIAMENT ADJOURNS

London, July 30.
Parliament has adjourned and will re-assemble on October 21. The House may assemble earlier in case of emergency. His Majesty the King will open the new session in state on October 20.—Reuter Bulletin.

GERMANY HOLDS RUSSIA SPOILS PEACE SCHEMES

Non-Intervention Plan Impeded by Lack Of Co-Operation

London, July 30.

At the meeting of the Non-Intervention Committee this afternoon, which was to consider the replies to the British proposals for the continuation of the control scheme in Spain, Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop, the German Ambassador, declared that Soviet Russia, in refusing to grant the Spanish warring factions belligerent rights, had destroyed the British plan.

It was useless to discuss the details of the answers to the British proposals, he went on, in the circumstances. The German Government would reserve its attitude towards this new situation in all respects, Herr von Ribbentrop declared.

"We Germans have known for a long time that but for Soviet Russia there would have been no Spanish civil war," the Ambassador told the Committee.

The meeting lasted three hours. At its conclusion it was officially stated that a comparison made of the answer received on the British plan showed a considerable measure of agreement. But there were important divergences, in view of which general discussion was probable.

The Committee adjourned at 7.30 p.m. to enable the Governments to consider the position arising out of the discussion.

GERMANY INSISTENT

Herr von Ribbentrop insisted on the granting of belligerent rights as a condition to all non-intervention measures. He declared General Francisco Franco would never accede to the proposals with regard to the withdrawal of volunteers without getting the right recognition of belligerence in exchange.

The Chairman's sub-committee will meet again early next week.

LORD PLYMOUTH'S PLEA

Lord Plymouth, chairman of the Committee, urged the necessity for all Governments represented on the Non-Intervention Committee to approve the British plan. Otherwise the parties in Spain were unlikely to agree to the suggestions.

M. Corbin, the French delegate, strongly supported the British spokesman. Count Dino Grandi, Italian representative, entirely agreed with the German representative.

M. Ivan Malaky, the Russian representative, declared that Herr von Ribbentrop's presentation of the Soviet view was grossly unfair. All the Germans and Italians wanted, he asserted, was to let General Franco (Continued on Page 16.)

PALESTINE PROPOSALS DEFENDED

Partitioning Plan Being Discussed At Geneva

Geneva, July 30.

His Majesty's Government has not committed itself in detail to the particular scheme of partition outlined in the Palestine Royal Commission's report, stated Mr. William Ormsby-Gore, Secretary for the Colonies, when advocating adoption of the Commission's suggestion at the Mandate Commission session here.

It was his opinion, he said, that the constitution of a boundary commission was essential to enable the formation of a definite scheme.

Mr. Ormsby-Gore pointed out that the process involved negotiations with the Jews and Arabs, if they are willing to negotiate, and the preparation of a definite scheme for submission to the Mandates Commission. Moreover, a referendum was proposed, and a subsidiary financial and military agreement to follow the treaties.

A modified form of mandate for parts of Palestine was contemplated in the British plan, the British Government continuing to act. It was foolish to imagine this was going to be an easy task, he said, but in the view of the British Government, the difficulties must be overcome, for it is held that this scheme is the best solution of the deadlock.—Reuter.

Awards For Volunteers

Efficiency Medals For Nine Men

H. E. the Officer Administering the Government has authorized the award of the Efficiency Medal to the following members of the Volunteer Defence Corps:

Piper George Nisbet.
Sergeant James Alexander Lindsay.
Sergeant Claude Sleeman Coom.
Private Alfred Leonard Eastman.
Lance-Corporal Ernest Joseph James Spradbery.
Sergeant John George Hooper.
Company Quartermaster Sergeant Henry James Millington, M.M.
Sergeant Archibald Nislim.
Private James Choa.

CONTROVERSY ENDED

London, July 30.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Chamberlain, told the House of Commons to-day that the Government had decided that ship-borne aircraft should be placed under operational administrative control of the Admiralty. Shore based aircraft, including flying-boats, would, however, remain under the Air Ministry. These decisions end a long controversy on the subject.—Reuter.

First Aid for Summer Finery

By JANET JAY

ALTHOUGH there is the advantage of quick drying out of doors on fine days, washing in big tubs during the summer months.

The kiddies seem to go through so many more frocks and overalls, while our own summer dresses and accessories usually need a rub through after each wearing if they are always to look fresh.

The blessing is that light materials are easy to wash and iron, and they pay handsomely for time and trouble spent in getting them up.

It is a good plan to look summer clothes over for stains before you collect them for the wash tub. This applies especially to fruit stains, because the action of soap and warm water has the effect of setting the dye further into the material.

Grass and Tar

Sponging with hot water alone will often remove these stains, and if you find that a blue or grey mark is left behind on white materials, moisten with lemon juice and sponge again with hot water before washing.

Hot weather often means tar stains on stockings, but you can float these off with a little butter or lard. Leave it on the stain for as long as possible before the garment is washed.

Grass stains on tennis "whites" is another problem, but I have found a method of removing these which often saves washing the whole garment. Mix equal parts of salt and tartaric acid, moisten slightly with water, spread the paste over the stains and brush off when dry.

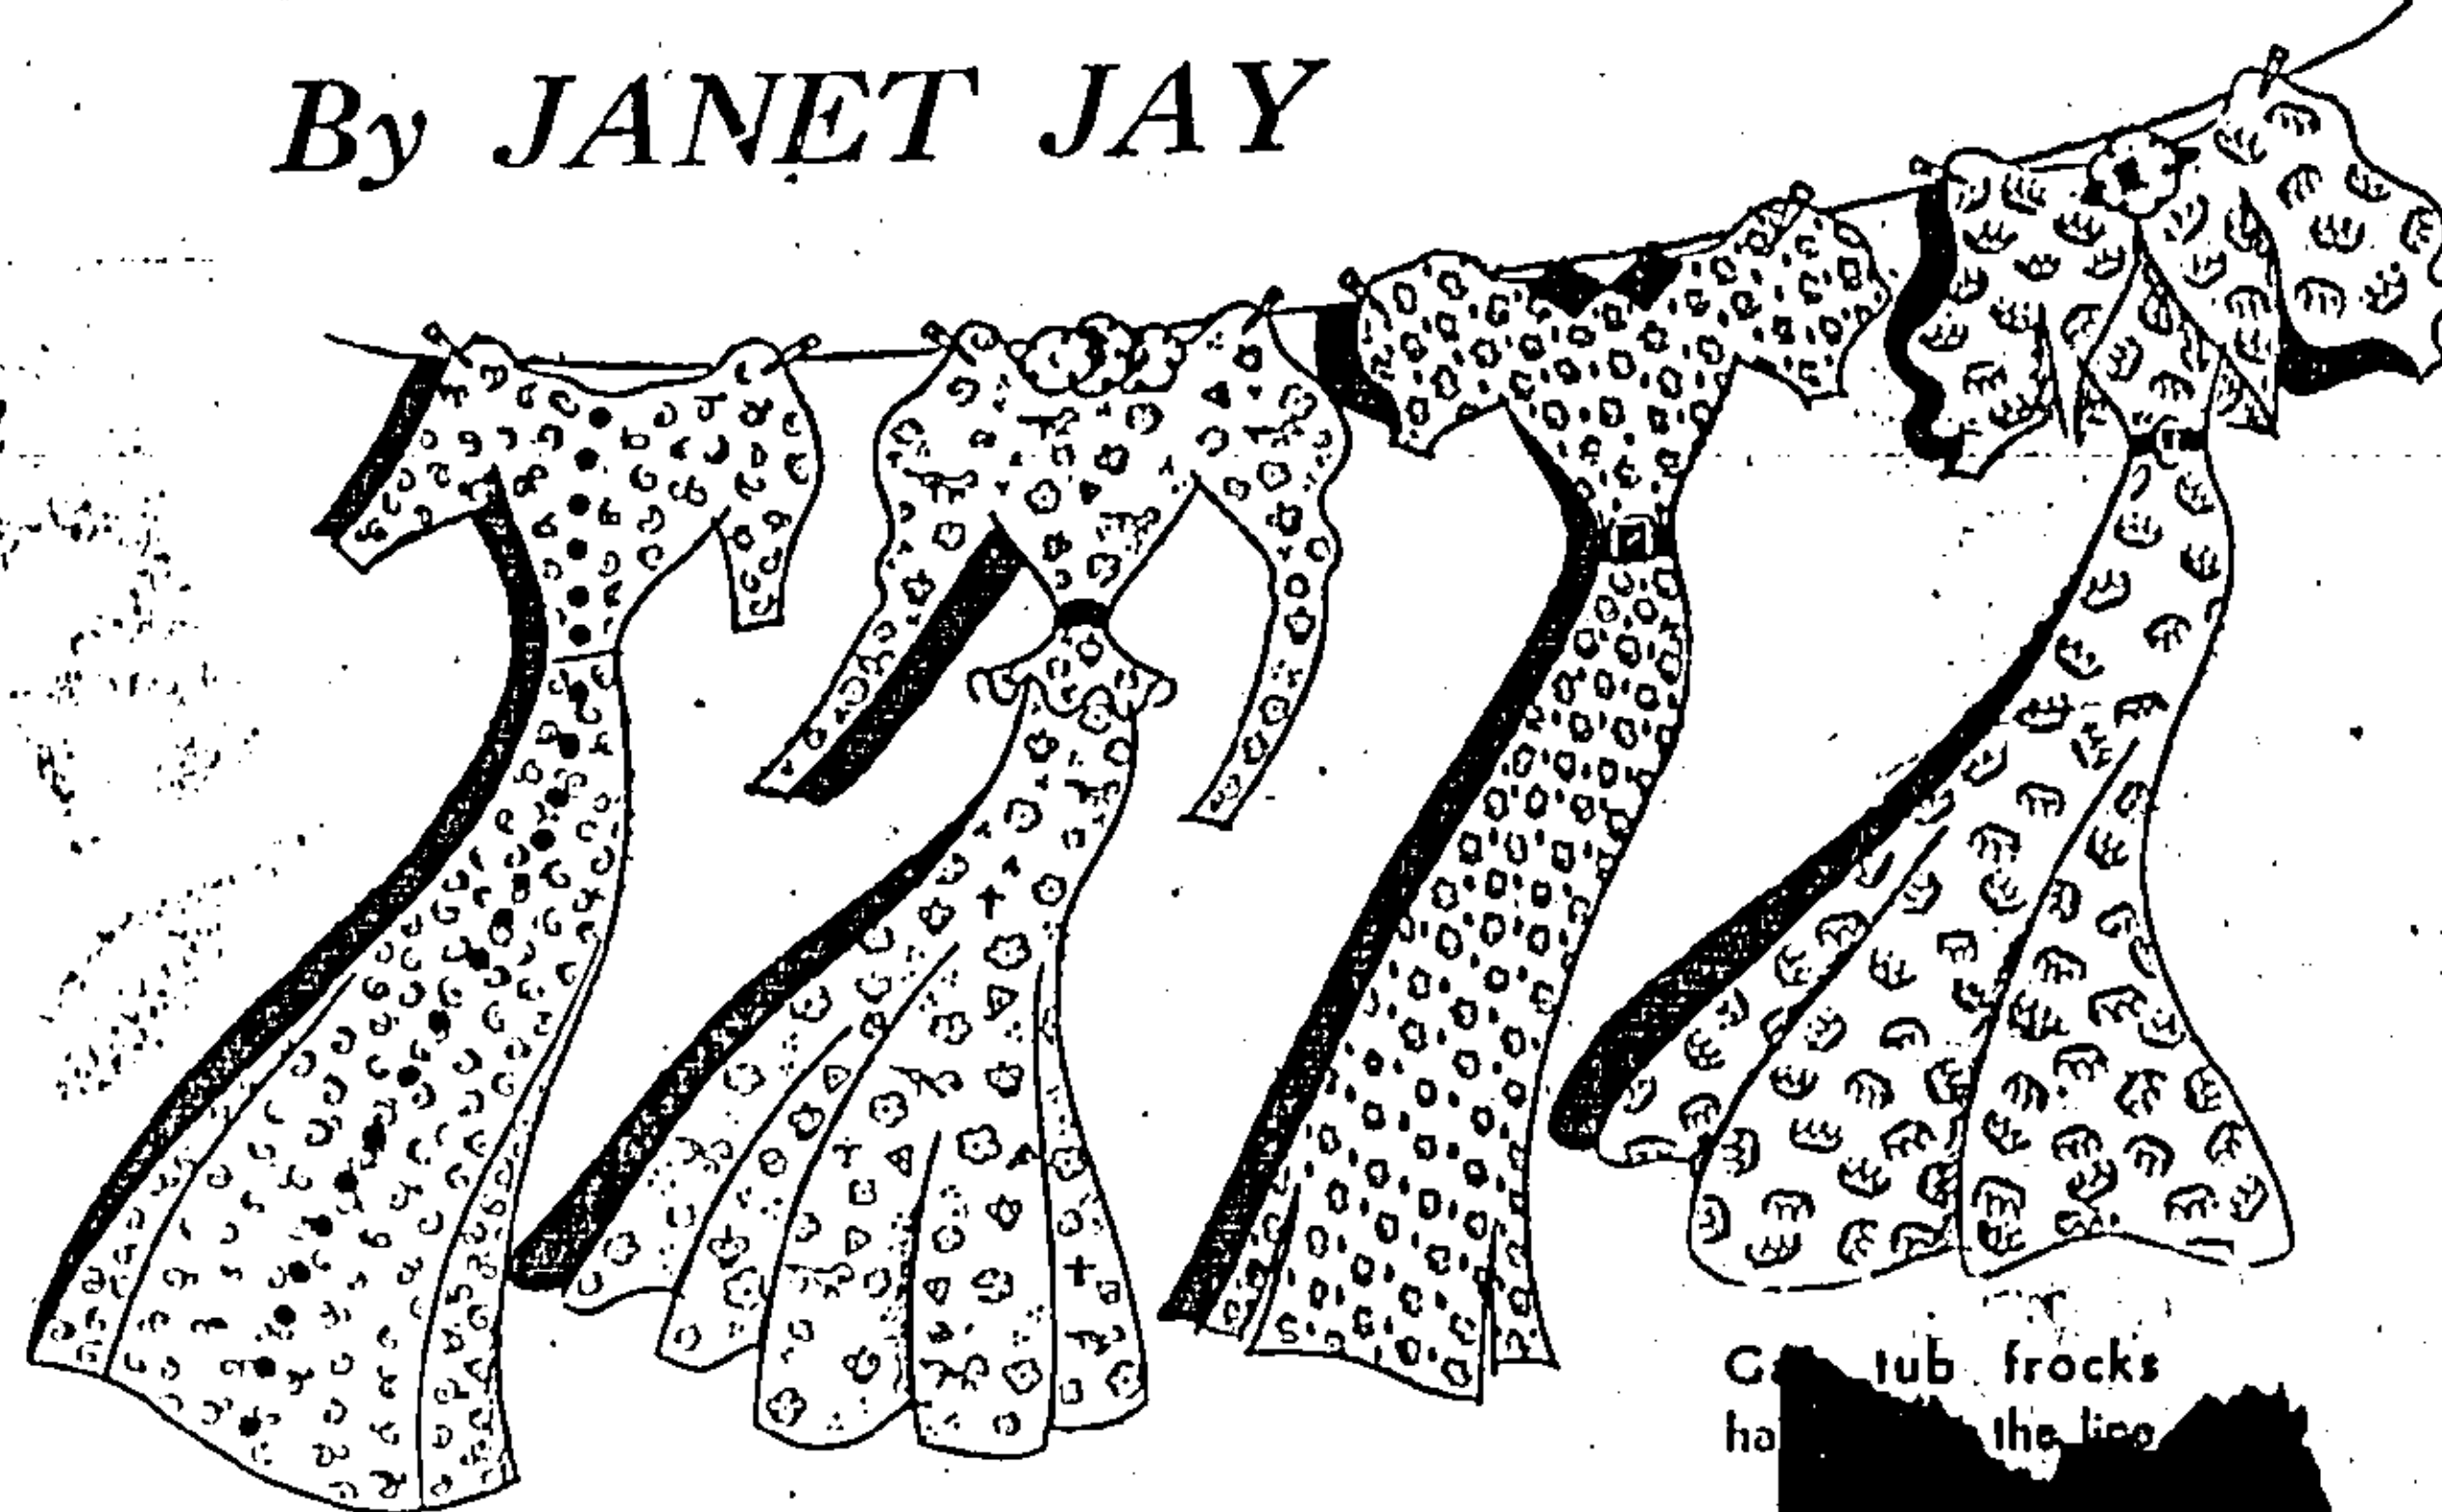

Obstinate Stains

A supply of borax is a help with summer laundry, as a little in the washing water softens it and removes all trace of perspiration from clothing. Half an ounce of borax, dissolved in a cup of boiling water then added to each gallon of washing water is the right proportion.

When there is a definite perspiration stain, it is a good plan to moisten it with water, cover thickly with dry borax, and then pour boiling water through before the frock is washed.

Cuffs, collar bands and ribbons should be kept clean more dirt and grease during the summer. They come quite clean without unnecessary rubbing if you add a few drops of cloudy ammonia to the washing water and let them soak for a few minutes.

A quick way of drying ribbons, by the way, is to wind them tightly round

Crowd Try To Pull Mosley From His Car

Italy's Big Religious Drive in Abyssinia

Rome, July 5.
ITALY is planning a new conquest of Abyssinia. It is hoped to convert the entire Coptic Church of Abyssinia to Roman Catholicism.

The Italian Press has already started the campaign.

"Only points of theological subtlety separate the two Churches at present," declares the Tevere.

"THE WILL OF GOD"

It is reported here that the Abuna Abraham of Gondar, preaching in the Coptic Cathedral at Addis Ababa, told the Abyssinian churchgoers:

"The Italian Government rules by the will of God. He who disobeys the Government disobeys God."

To this Rome adds: "The Churches will not be separated by mere points of dogma."

The Wash Basins Are Fixtures

Every year the Southern Railway's average loss of towels is 40,000.

This fact came to light at Croydon recently, when a man was accused of stealing a towel from a train.

He could not say how the towel got into his baggage case.

The charge was dismissed under the Probation Act.

Blind - Wins Life-saving Medal

SIGHTLESS Mr. William Rimington, of Thornbury, Bradford, has just passed three strict tests of the Royal Life Saving Society to gain the coveted award, the bronze medal of the Society for Life-saving.

He is believed to be the first blind man in Bradford to achieve this honour.

Mr. Rimington, who is 31, is a brushmaker, employed at U.E. Frizinghall works of the Bradford Blind Institute.

19 ARRESTS IN MARCH

London, July 5.

Three thousand pounds is what a Fascist march led through London yesterday by Sir Oswald Mosley is estimated to have cost the taxpayer.

Three thousand policemen were on special duty at Kentish Town (starting point after the East End had been burned), Trafalgar-square (finishing point), and along the route.

Three thousand was the number of the Fascists, whose march was at all points subjected to breaking up attempts by demonstrators, whom the police held easily in check.

Only at one point was there real excitement—when Mosley's car was attacked near Charing Cross Bridge after his speech at Trafalgar-square.

Attempts were made to pull him from the car, and stones were thrown at the windscreen. No one in the car was hurt.

Altogether nineteen arrests were made during the march. There were no police casualties. Police Commissioner Sir Philip Game supervised operations in Trafalgar-square.

Behind the procession rode a large squadron of mounted police and four buses crammed full with police, some of whom sat on the floors.

There were some scuffles. A few police helmets were knocked off, and a transport official was treated roughly by a crowd of Communists, and was taken to Charing Cross Hospital with cuts to the face.

10,000 PACKED

TRAFALGAR-SQUARE

Missiles thrown at the marchers included an apple, an open knife, and a long steel file. Boos and hisses, shrill whistling, and abuse were directed at them. They answered the clenched fists of the Communists with the Fascist salute.

A large crowd had waited for hours in Trafalgar-square for the marchers to arrive. When the Fascists appeared there was a pandemonium of sound. A number of men were escorted away.

The Fascists formed up round the Nelson Column, separated from the Communists by a few yards, with a double barrier of police between.

When Mosley spoke his voice was drowned by the singing of the "Internationale," cheers, cat-calls, whistles, for twenty minutes.

There were more than 10,000 in the square when the demonstration was at its height. All traffic had to be stopped, and the gates of Charing Cross Station were closed. The steps of St. Martin's Church and the National Gallery were used as grandstands.

Police control was perfect. Never for a moment was there a danger of serious disorder.

Top picture shows police struggling with a refractory spirit at Trafalgar Square and below the arrest of a belligerent young lady.

Ordains Son, Will Go To Gaol "Happy"

Leicester, July 5.

There were tears in the eyes of the Very Rev. T. T. Johnstone, ex-Moderator of the Presbyterian Church of Ireland, when his son knelt before him in London-road Congregational Church here to-night.

The son, the Rev. T. M. Johnstone, was being ordained. Next Wednesday he will marry Miss I. R. Riley, of Nottingham. Two days later his father will return to Belfast and go to prison.

He was fined £100 in Ulster High Court on Tuesday for contempt of court, and ordered "if necessary" to be lodged in prison until the money was paid.

"I Am Not Afraid"

He chose to go to prison, requested that he might be allowed to attend his son's ordination and marriage, and was given permission to do so "on parole."

Dr. Johnstone was committed for a speech criticising the King's Bench Division Judges who granted a liquor licence.

"I don't want to go to prison," he said to me to-night, "but I'm not afraid to face it. The fine will not be paid either by me, by my family, or by my church."

"This is the greatest day of my life, but next Wednesday will be greater. My son's wife will be his greatest help in his life and in his ministry. When I have seen them married I shall go to prison a happy man."

EXPERTS DISAGREE

INTERPRETATION OF CHINESE LAW

The £10,000 opium confiscation claim which continued before Mr. Justice C. G. Alabaster yesterday, is not expected to end before next Thursday.

The case for the defendants was opened yesterday. They deny responsibility for the seizure by the Chinese Government.

Evidence was given by Mr. Theodore Chung-yan Chen who said he was a graduate of St. John's University, Shanghai, and had passed the Kiangsu Magistrate's and the National Judicial Officers' Examinations, which qualified him to sit on the bench. He had been in practice in Shanghai as a barrister since 1930 and was now with Fong and Co.

Dealing with Notification 948 requesting advance notice in writing of the arrival of opium, witness said he did not agree with other experts that the notification was of a mandatory nature. The word "request" should be taken at its English equivalent as there was no official Chinese text.

So far as a supplementary manifest was concerned, this could be filed within 24 hours of the original even though the cargo concerned was opium. Witness was of the opinion that the Customs authorities could allow transshipment on their own authority.

Mr. Chen did not agree with the other experts that importation was the bringing of goods within territorial waters. If that was so, a ship might pass through territorial waters without touching a single port and yet be importing. Importation must have landed its ultimate object. He did not know of any authority giving the Customs power to seize unmanifested goods before 1930. In February, 1931, however, this power was given in Nanking laws.

Merchants' Grievance
Merchants and foreign consuls in Shanghai had never agreed on the subject of confiscation. If confiscation had been legal in 1930 and if it were a matter of case law, the Customs would have published periodic reports for the guidance of merchants.

Cross-examined by Mr. Potter, witness agreed that China had made laws for the extermination of opium. He agreed that on his arguments a ship could carry opium and lie alongside the wharf without interference, providing its papers were in order, even if no advance notice were given. The Customs officers would be active in such a case to prevent the opium from being smuggled ashore.

Counsel remarked that such a condition of things was putting a premium on smuggling. Witness agreed that the request for advance notice was a reasonable one, but said in his opinion the lack of it did not render smuggling prevention less effective. Merchants could comply with the request at their convenience.

Mr. Chen said ships with opium on board could be stopped at sea and brought into port under the authority which China had to use all effective means to prevent smuggling. If, however, a ship's opium transit papers were in order and even if the agent said it was intended to be used for a declaration to do an act did not amount to an attempt to do it.

Mr. Potter: So China law is powerless to touch opium in transit unless it can be absolutely proved that it is going to be smuggled?

Witness: Yes.

The hearing was adjourned until Tuesday morning.

TO THE CINEMAS

"Love Is News" (Queen's Theatre, to-day).—This is one of those really satisfying films, in which humour, romance, dramatic action and smooth dialogue are admirably blended. Featured by some excellent performances by Tyrone Power, Loretta Young and Don Ameche.

"Sing Me A Love Song" (King's Theatre, to-day).—Pleasant picture of real entertainment merit. James Melton, Patricia Ellis, Sazu Pitts, Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins and Walter Catlett are featured players.

"The Crime Nobody Saw" (Alhambra Theatre, to-day).—Cleverly woven mystery thriller with Lew Ayres, Ruth Coleman and Eugene Pallette playing the principal roles.

"The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" (Alhambra Theatre, to-day).—A picture you dare not miss, bringing together in riotous fun the superb trio of Joan Crawford, William Powell and Robert Montgomery.

"Maid of Salem" (Oriental Theatre, to-day).—Superbly produced film, done in Frank Lloyd's best style, helped by brilliant performances by Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray.

"Pick A Star" (King's Theatre, to-morrow).—Happy-go-lucky type of film which cannot fail to amuse and entertain. Patsy Kelly, Jack Haley, Rosina Lawrence, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy are the featured players.

"Sing And Be Happy" (Alhambra Theatre, to-morrow).—A musical romance presented with the customary embellishments, and played by Anthony Martin, Leah Ray and Joan Davis among others.

"Without Orders" (Oriental Theatre, to-morrow).—Finely constructed story and very well told on the screen. Sally Eilers, Charley Grapewin, Robert Armstrong, Vinson Haworth and Frances Sage are the leading performers.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

LESSON SERMON

First Church of Christ,

Scientist, Hongkong

The subject of the Lesson Sermon in all churches of Christ, Scientist, to-morrow, August 1, will be:

"Love." The Golden Text will be: "Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace will be with you." (II Corinthians 13:11).

Among others, the following citations from the Bible will be read: "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty." (II Cor. 6:14, 17, 18).

The Lesson Sermon will also include the following passages from the Christian Science Textbook: "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

"Christian Scientists must live under the constant pressure of the apostolic command to come out from the material world and be separate. They must renounce aggression, oppression and the pride of power. Christianity, with the crown of Love upon her brow, must be their queen of life." (Page 451).

PERSONS UNKNOWN

INQUEST ON MURDERED
WOMAN HAWKER

Found dead on Tai Po Road on June 6, after having been missing since April 24, a widow, Chau Fung, was declared to have been murdered by persons unknown at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday.

Mr. E. Himsforth, Coroner, was assisted by a jury comprising Messrs. H. M. dos Remedios (foreman), Pan Shou-feng and C. A. Baretto.

Det. Insp. Carey and Det. Sgt. Wallingford conducted the inquiry.

Dr. G. H. Henry said he was unable to ascertain the cause of death as the body was badly decomposed. There were no fractures.

Wu Tam the dead woman's son, said they lived together in a hut near the Tai Po Road. She earned a living as an itinerant hawk of cakes. The last time he saw her alive was April 24, when she set out on her usual business. He did not return.

On July 7, he saw a skeleton which he identified as his mother by the remnants of clothing. Her two baskets lay nearby. A rope was bound around her neck, and her hands and feet were also tied. Her purse, in which she was in the habit of carrying about $80, was gone.

The ex-rector then launched a campaign throughout the country, always vehemently protesting his innocence. In the course of this campaign he resorted to undignified methods to attract publicity to his cause, such as sitting in a barred farthing glass cabinet at Blackpool and travelling the country "on show" at fairs and carnivals.

He was fatally injured while haranguing holiday makers at Skegness from a lion's den. He accidentally stumbled over a lioness, which angrily mauled him and broke his neck. He died in hospital.—Reuter Special.

His death recalls the most sensational Consistory Court case within memory. After a protracted trial in 1932 Davidson was found guilty on several charges of immoral conduct and was stripped of all his ecclesiastical offices.

TEXTILE INDUSTRY

EFFECT OF NEW TARIFF LEGISLATION

Through a concession from the Secretary of State for the Colonies excluding business booked before July 7 from the operation of the new regulation under the Textile Quotas legislation, Hongkong manufacturers will now be able to export some $500,000 worth of textile goods which have been held up.

The new regulation requires all goods from Hongkong to other British Colonies to be spun, woven and finished in the British Empire, or, if only woven and finished in Hongkong, the yarn to have been spun elsewhere in the Empire.

As is generally known, most of the yarn and semi-finished material for this Colony's textile industry has been hitherto drawn from non-Empire sources, and the restriction to Imperial Preference produced by the new regulation has found the local industry almost totally unprepared for a change.

One or two factories anticipating the new regulation as inevitable have begun to switch over to the Indian yarn, but the process, generally speaking, has been slow. Of more immediate concern to the majority has been the problem of the extensive orders booked prior to the new legislation, and for these concerned the information just received from the Secretary of State for the Colonies has produced an immense relief.

Reaction on Japanese yarn has been a decided drop in its price, promoted further by the present tendency of the Yen to depreciate.
It may not be without the bounds of possibility that this drop may yet advance to a point when all advantages to be derived by local manufacturers from the use of the Indian substitute will be wiped out.

As stated, the position of the rayon factories is admittedly difficult, as no Empire equivalent at a comparable price can be obtained to replace the Japanese yarn they have been using.

"LOOKS LIKE WAR"

CHINA CRISIS DEBATE
IN COMMONS

London, July 30.
Major Attlee, leader of the Opposition, in the course of the pre-adjournment debate on Foreign Af-airs in the House of Commons today declared that the Far Eastern situation looked like breaking into war.

"The Chinese all the time," he said,
"have gone to the very limit in their endeavour to maintain peace, but every point conceded has been met by more aggression. If these things are allowed to continue it will mean the abrogation of all treaties to which we and the United States are parties."

It is time for the League of Nations to take notice of what is occurring in the Far East. The tendency is now for aggressive states to bank on the unreadiness of the rest of the world to take action. Unless the world refuses to stand by and see innocent states suffering aggression there will be continuous incitement to this gambling and encouragement of certain elements in Italy, Germany and other states which favour aggression.

Mr. R. J. G. Boothby (Conserva-

RECEIVING CHARGES

PROSECUTION ENDS IN CASE AGAINST APPRENTICE

Evidence for the prosecution was concluded before Mr. Barnett at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday in the charges against F. W. Winyard, apprentice, of receiving 10 books, the property of Mr. James Smith, chief mechanical engineer of the Kowloon-Canton Railway, and a case of drawing instruments and 11 blueprints, the property of the Railway.

In answer to Mr. C. d'Almada, representing Winyard, Mr. Smith stated that on the first visit of Inspector Cunningham to Winyard's house, he was concerned with another matter, but it was incorrect to say that he was greatly annoyed because his name had been used without his knowledge. The charges of larceny had not been dropped at his instigation.

Regarding a book produced by Mr.
d'Almada bearing the name of Urquhart, Mr. Smith said it would not surprise him if Mr. Urquhart said that he had lent it to Winyard. He could only state that he had bought it at a second-hand shop.

Questioned on the books which he stated belonged to his son, Mr. Smith said they were Bennett College books.
When Mr. d'Almada produced catalogues of Bennett College books and pointed out that they were actually bound by Bennett College and had their name and crest on the cover
Mr. Smith said he had studied at that College and knew that special books could be procured through them. He knew that Winyard had attempted two courses in mechanical engineering at that College and it was possible that they had sent him books, although why he should require two sets he did not know.

When Winyard joined the Railway in January 1935, said Mr. Smith, he was assistant engineer and Mr. Lambert chief mechanical engineer. He had not noticed if Mr. Lambert took special interest in Winyard's career but knew that Mr. Lambert had advised Winyard's parents to send him to England. Mr. Smith agreed that Mr. Lambert may have lent books to defendant.

No Use to Student
One of the books, Mr. Smith went on, was issued by the Institute of Mechanical Engineers and every member was sent a copy. It dealt with very advanced engineering and could be of no use to a student.
Referring to the books which he borrowed from Prof. Middleton
Smith of the University, Mr. Smith said that he could not say which he lost first.

Mr. Smith stated he was in Hospital in April last year, but denied having then given Winyard permission to take what books he required.
Winyard had visited him at the hospital, he said.

Identifying each of the books mentioned in the charges, Mr. Smith pointed out an inscription in one of them, which stated that it had been given by Mr. Lambert to Winyard in 1935. This book, he said, was not missed from the office until 1936.
The inscription was not in the book then.

When it was suggested that the blueprints found in Winyard's possession had been either copies specially made for him by the drawing office boy, or old discards, Mr.
Smith said the copies were in any case Government property, and the boy had no right to give them away.

Ting Yee-yau, office boy, admitted that he had given Winyard six of the blueprints, but not the remaining five.

Mr. A. Urquhart identified the book, "Acro Engines," which Mr.
Smith declared he had bought in a second-hand store, as his own which he had lent to Winyard in 1935, together with several other books which were produced.

The hearing was adjourned to August 10.

the situation in the Far East.

Mr. Eden said, "It has deteriorated far more benefit by a policy which aims at elimination of enmities and

KING CAROL ENTERTAINS DURING CRISIS

POLISH CRISIS—Refusal of Archbishop Sapieha of Cracow to receive King Carol of Rumania ceremonially in Cracow Cathedral, because of religious differences, caused the Polish Cabinet to offer its resignation to President Ignaco Moscicki, which was not accepted. King Carol entertained President Moscicki in Bucharest, as shown above, and was to return the visit.

CONDEMNED MAN ACCUSES LORD CHIEF JUSTICE

"You Did Not Give Me One Good Word"

London, July 3.

FREDERICK GEORGE MURPHY, fifty-three-year-old ex-ship's stoker, drew air through his teeth when he heard an Old Bailey jury yesterday say "Guilty" to a charge of murdering Rosina Field in an Islington cellar beneath a shop on May 12.

His little dark eyes darted from jury to judge, down to the table where detectives and solicitors sat.

He glared across to Lord Chief Justice Hewart.

"Have you anything to say before sentence of death is pronounced on you?" said the Clerk of Arraigns.

"Yes, I have," Murphy snapped. "In your summing-up, my lord, you did not give one good word for me. You told the jury I was nothing else but a liar, that I was telling nothing but lies."

"I can prove that Rosie Keen (a witness with whom Murphy said he spent part of May 12) has been in the shop with me. . . . If ever perjury has been committed in a case it has been done by her and Divisional Detective Inspector Salisbury."

He pointed a finger at Mr. Salisbury.

SIX TIMES IN GAOL

"When I was arrested," he shouted, "he said to me, 'Murphy, I don't want to be hard on you. Say you hit this woman and I will bring this charge down to manslaughter.' I said it had nothing at all to do with me."

"I told him I could tell him my movements on Coronation Day and he said 'All right.'"

"That man there"—he pointed at Superintendent Bennett—"what's his name?"

"Bennett," the superintendent said.

"Yes, Bennett, Chief Inspector Bennett," Murphy barked. "He came in, too. I had all my clothes taken off in front of fifteen officers. I was naked as I was born."

He turned again to the Lord Chief Justice, wagged a finger at him.

"In your summing-up, you should have asked more about Rosie Keen. You just think a moment."

Murphy stopped. Lord Hewart kept his eyes on him. "It's very near time this committing of perjury is put a stop to," he ended. "It's not the first time, but several times where perjury has been committed in different names and at murder trials at that."

Said Lord Hewart: "You know as well as I know that the verdict is right." Then he pronounced the death sentence. Murphy spoke again.

He sneered: "Mercy on my soul—Oh, Yes!" and was gone.

A London-born Irishman, pug-nosed and squal, Murphy belongs to the submerged section of the city's population.

He said in court his first conviction was for assault. It was not the whole truth.

It was for assaulting and living on the immoral earnings of a woman in 1906. He went to gaol for four months.

He has been in prison five times since.

HE WAS FRIENDLESS

His longest sentence was in 1926—twelve months for being on enclosed premises for an unlawful purpose at Catford.

He used sometimes the name of George Taylor.

There were long periods when he was away at sea stoking ships.

"Tough Mick" was his nickname, a man who lived hard, and drank hard.

But friendless. No one, except his lawyers, went to see him while waiting trial in Brixton Prison.

No one, not even the woman he lived with for five years, had a word to say for him at the Old Bailey yesterday.

Dismissed Detective May Be Reinstated: Home Secretary Acts

By A Special Reporter

EX-DETECTIVE INSPECTOR B. J. NICHOLLS, fourth senior detective of London City Police until he was dismissed on April 8, may be reinstated.

Mr. Nicholls appealed to the Home Secretary against the Police Commissioner's decision on evidence relating to an alleged meeting in a City restaurant with a man on bail.

The Home Secretary has now communicated with the Commissioner of City Police, in consequence of which the Commissioner will reconsider the evidence and make a further report to the Home Secretary.

Mr. Nicholls, who served eighteen years, was out when he took this news to his home in Brockley Rise, S.E. yesterday.

Mr. Nicholls said, "Oh, I knew things were moving. I felt all along it would come out all right."

"My husband did not take another job because he too thought his name would be cleared. He has lost no friends. Every one who knows him knows that he would not do such a thing."

Mr. Nicholls took a large part in the pepper pool inquiries. On the day of his suspension he was engaged in the search for Stanley Spiro, missing City financier.

After his dismissal Scotland-yard officers made searching investigations in the City. Allegations against a number of other City detectives were examined. Bank accounts were searched. Many of the officers concerned in the allegations were summoned to Scotland-yard to reply to statements made against them.

After his dismissal Scotland-yard officers made searching investigations in the City. Allegations against a number of other City detectives were examined. Bank accounts were searched. Many of the officers concerned in the allegations were summoned to Scotland-yard to reply to statements made against them.

Mr. Nicholls said, "Oh, I knew things were moving. I felt all along it would come out all right."

"My husband did not take another job because he too thought his name would be cleared. He has lost no friends. Every one who knows him knows that he would not do such a thing."

FORMER PREMIER WEDS—Here is the scene in Chaumont-sur-Taronne, France, when Andre Tardieu, former French Premier and retired political leader of the Right Wing, was married to Mme. Julie Blanchard, in the civil ceremony. A church wedding followed. M. Tardieu will soon resume his writing.

She Hasn't Seen Another Woman For 2 Years

She is white-haired, 70-year-old Flora Macrae. She came to the door of her white-washed cottage leaning heavily on a stick.

Open-mouthed, as if she were seeing a ghost, she started. It was a long time before she spoke.

And then she apologised—and explained—in the beautiful tongue of the islanders.

Flora and her two shepherd brothers, all septuagenarians, are the entire population of Rona, which lies off the West coast of Scotland.

BIG INCREASES IN STAFF OF CIVIL SERVICE

297,140 in 1928:

338,604 in 1936

HOW WORK HAS GROWN

Complaints of over-staffing in the Foreign Office and Dominions Office, contained in the report of the Select Committee on Estimates, call attention once again to the steady increase in the number of people employed in almost every Government.

In 1928 there were 41,404 more Civil Servants than there were in 1928, according to the official statement on "Staffs Employed in Government Departments" issued by the Financial Secretary to the Treasury each year. On April 1, 1928, the "grand total of all departments" was given as 297,140; the corresponding figure on April 1, 1936, was 338,604. From the Estimates of the various Departments it is clear that in many cases there will be further increases in staff during the current year.

An interesting feature of Civil Service growth is that of three Departments which, a few years ago, were to be abolished. They are the Ministry of Transport, the Mines Department, and the Department of Overseas Trade.

In 1928 the Ministry of Transport staff totalled 602. Last year according to the official returns it was 2,245. For 1937, according to the Department's estimates, it will be 2,623.

Mines Department staff in 1928 totalled 343. Last year it was 377. For 1937 it is estimated at 390.

On the staff of the Overseas Trade Department there were 348 in 1928; 440 in 1936 and this year (estimated) 403.

Among other Departments showing increases in staff over a number of years are the following:

	1928.	1936.	1937.
Post Office	191,623	295,956	218,423
Inland Revenue	20,210	23,622	25,073
Customs and Excise	11,823	14,239	14,016
Home Dept. (Law and Justice)	9,578	11,575	11,953
Health England and (Wales)	5,749	6,278	6,152
Labour	13,992	23,956	25,187

Following are some of the reasons advanced for increased staffs in

When the islanders, their living gone, abandoned their homes, the Macraes stayed on.

"More than two years since I saw another woman," repeated Flora Macrae, inviting me into the sparsely-furnished cottage.

"Aye, it's a lonely life, especially in winter, and I miss the little-tattle of other women."

As she made a pot of tea she asked questions about life on the mainland.

Flora Macrae has never seen a film or a motor-car. The stories I told of the mainland were fairy tales of another world to her.

Then, as we sat over our cups of tea, she talked of her own life on the island.

YOUTH'S EXODUS

"It wasn't always like this. Rona was well-populated not so long ago, and when I was a girl folk lived quite comfortably," she said.

Then Flora Macrae went on to tell of the struggle for life that the islanders had waged.

The young people, with no opportunities to make good, left the island. Year by year it was more difficult to find enough people to cultivate the land and get food.

At last all but the Macraes left in a body. Some went to neighbouring islands, the rest to the mainland.

"You see, we've lived here all our lives," Flora Macrae said, as if that explained everything. "I miss the sound of the children's feet more than anything, though. They used to come playing and laughing round here every day."

It's awkward having no doctor, too. I was laid up last winter with neuritis for two months, and when the weather was bad the doctor couldn't get across to me.

"It's nice when you're ill to have a woman about the place, too. But my brothers are very good to me."

certain Departments: Foreign Office.—The complexity of the international situation; preparation of replies to a large number of questions to the Foreign Secretary and other work; interest taken in Foreign Affairs as shown by the fact that four or five Press Department officials have to answer the inquiries of scores of journalists, British and foreign. London is now the diplomatic centre.

Dominions Office.—Considerable work following the Ottawa Agreements; preparation of the Imperial Conference; the Coronation; development of Imperial Air Mail; shipping and other questions of growing importance.

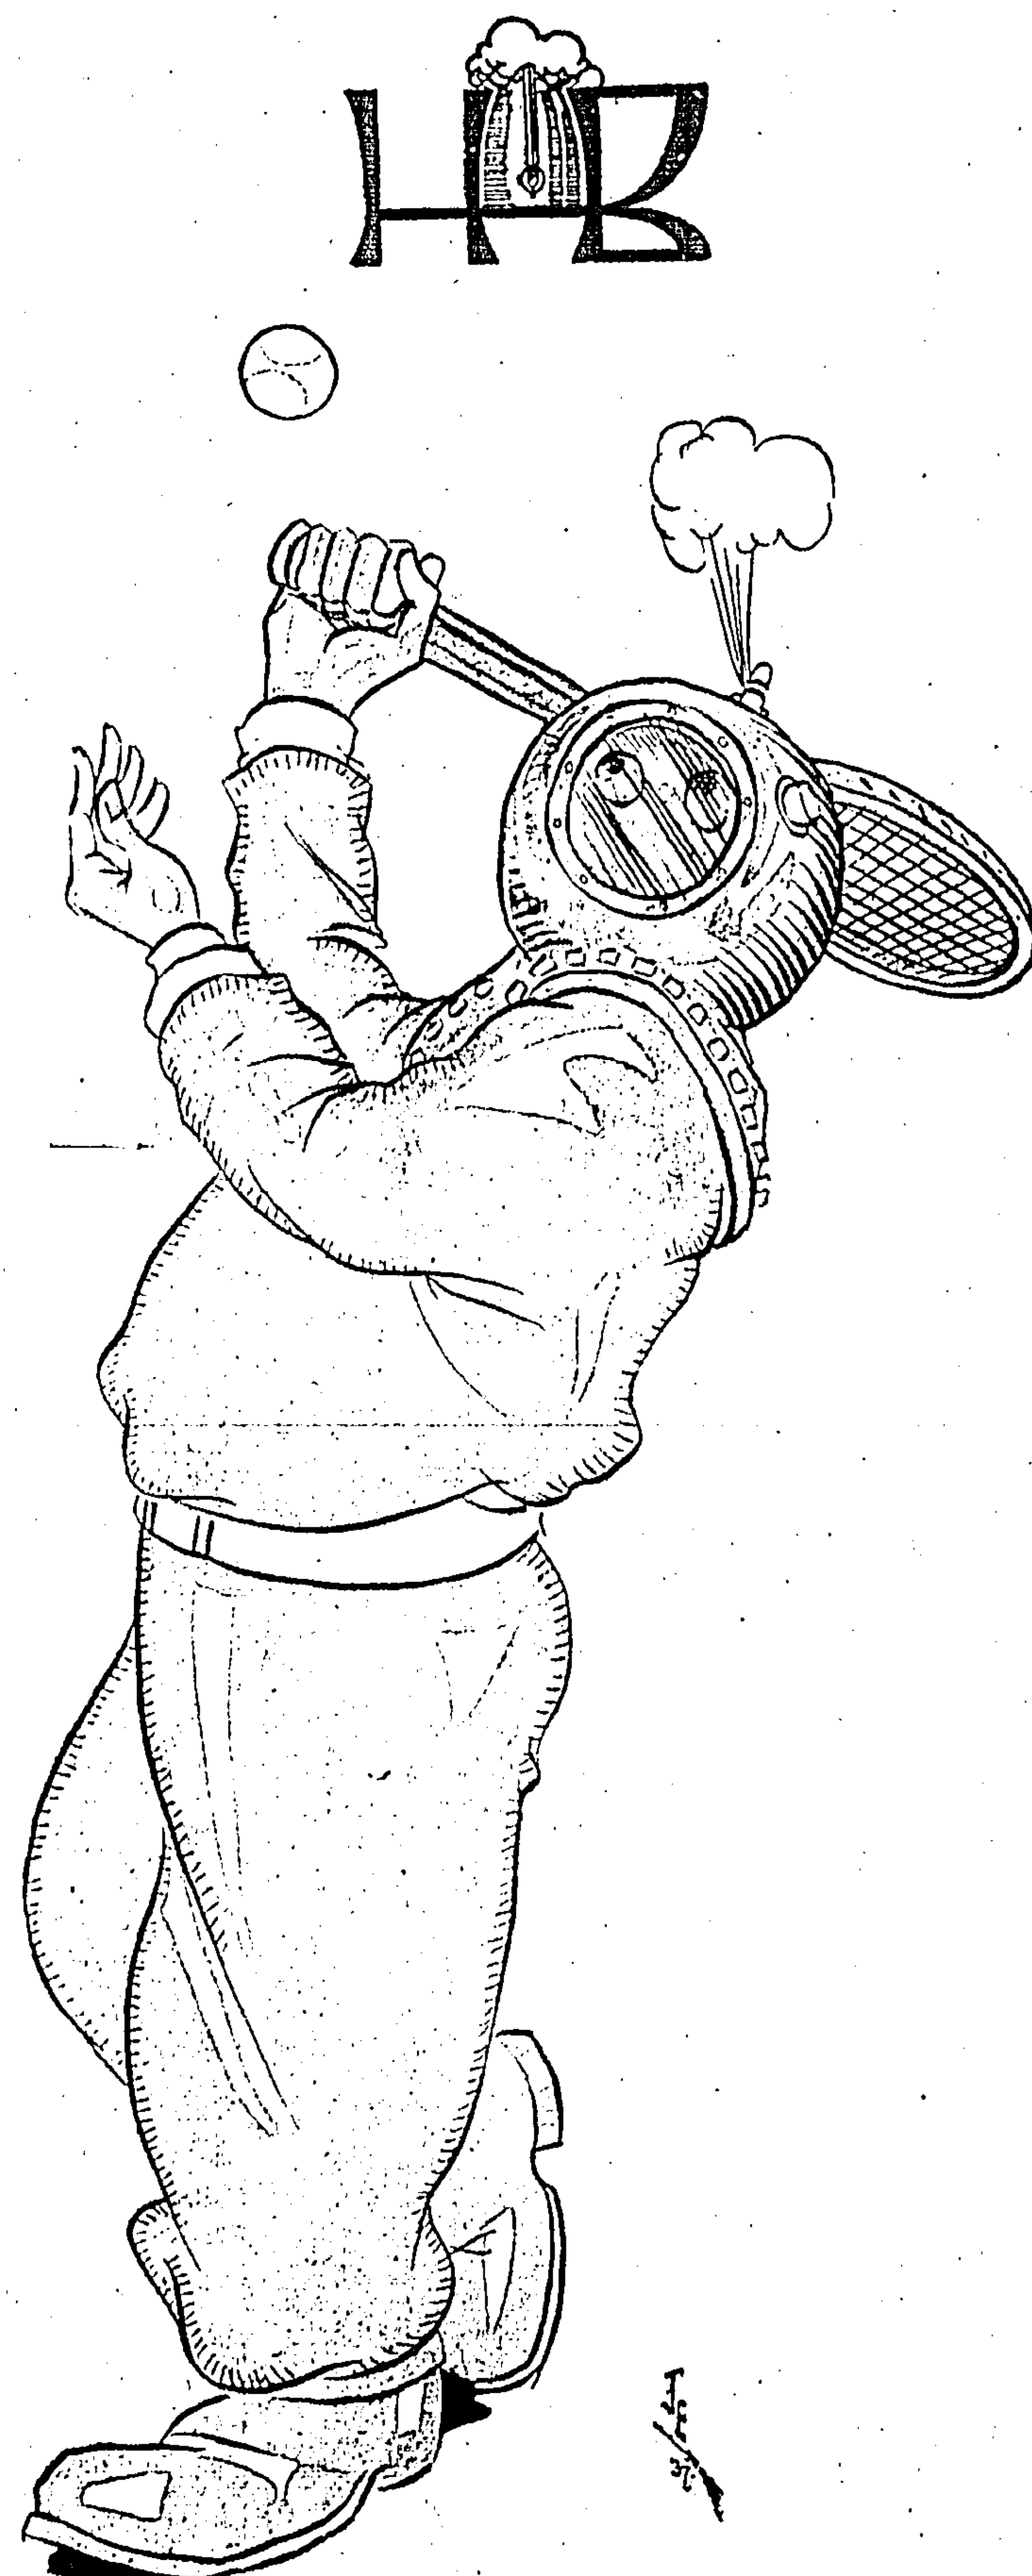

Transport.—Taking over trunk roads; administering the Road Act, and the mass of other recent legislation governing all sections of Transport.

LOCAL LEPROSY SURVEY

Two facts stand out prominently from the results of the investigations into the leprosy problem by the Kowloon Residents' Association. The first is that the disease, loathsome though it and definitely contagious, is not the serious menace to the Colony which many people think it is; the second, that, except in the matter of notification or registration, existing local laws meet the case—provided they are put into effect. The inquiry which the Association has so admirably carried out had its genesis in the discovery of a colony of lepers on the mainland. Informed of the matter, however, all that the Government did was to demolish the shacks inhabited by the lepers, permitting the occupants to disperse and mingle with the community generally. Putting aside the possible danger to public health from such a course, consideration for the sufferers themselves might have been shown to the extent of seeing that they were given proper treatment. Actually, there was on the Statute Book at that time, and still is, an Ordinance making provision for the medical care and treatment of lepers, but this Ordinance, like so many others in this Colony, has remained practically a dead letter. Under it, not only are out-patient clinics and hospital accommodation envisaged, but the provision of a leper settlement or settlements is among the matters for which the Governor-in-Council is empowered to make regulations. What is needed is that the plans contemplated by the Ordinance should be put into operation. Consequently, the Kowloon Residents' Association, in urging the establishment of a leper asylum and clinics for treatment of the disease in its early stages, is asking nothing more than the Government itself admits to be necessary. Compulsory segregation is not considered desirable, as it would tend to drive cases underground, but the Association is fully alive to the dangers of infection caused by the free intermingling of lepers with the community at large, without control of any kind. It therefore strongly urges an addition to the existing law, providing for some form of notification or registration with the medical authorities. The Association's proposals appear

In the House of Commons Kitchen.

Five Members of the House of Commons tell PERCY CATER the High Cost of Being an M. P.

M. P.s are drawing £600 a year as from July 1 because £400 is not, for a modern politician, a living wage.

Three hundred and twenty-five M.P.s have said that the rise is just and proper. And the Prime Minister shocked the country by his revelations that some people had had to go hungry to be members of the House of Commons.

Anxious Days

AFTER that, very few can think it enviable to be an M.P., apart from the preposterous hours politicians are compelled to work. Only 17 voices were raised against the idea that M.P.s—who, in any case, are hired and fired with revolting suddenness from time to time—should be so remunerated that they do not have to stay awake at night worrying about an anxious present and an even more uncertain future.

In a vague way Westminster knew that some M.P.s who had to keep homes going in the provinces and educate families on £8 a week (sometimes less tax) clubbed together in town to cut the cost. It was known that many an M.P. laboriously typed his own letters to his constituents because he could not afford secretarial help.

Altogether grimmer was the Premier's declaration that more than one M.P. had had to go easy on the food to make ends meet. The House of Commons, which does not want skeletons in its cupboard, made the division on the £600 a good solid meal.

Where Money Goes

WHAT has life been like on the £400 which has been the M.P.'s subsistence allowance for a generation long enough to become proverbial, without being any more pleasant on that account.

I talked recently with a number of M.P.s, some of them men of means to whom the £400 was in the nature of an expense con-to be eminently sound and reasonable, the more so since the cost of putting them into effect would not be by any means heavy. Once the existing Ordinance, with the additional precaution advocated by the Association, is effectively enforced, danger to public health should be eliminated, and, what is of equal importance, sufferers from the disease would be assured of adequate treatment.

tribution, others men who had had to make the £400 spin out to cover all their bills as family men, or who knew those who were in that position.

Here is a selection from what I was told:

Mr. Morgan Jones (Soc., Caerphilly): "The case of the M.P. who has to maintain two homes—one in London for himself and one in the provinces for his family—deserves the utmost sympathy. Life has been difficult even for many M.P.s who, on £400 a year, live in London. Members of my party have had to resort to shifts which they would not like to discuss, but they show the terrible fight they have had to keep going."

Mr. Alfred Denville (Cons., Newcastle on Tyne Central): "My salary has never covered my expenses. It has always taken more than £400 to do the work properly, to employ a secretary, and attend to the considerable correspondence which an M.P. has to transact nowadays, and to look after the social side of an M.P.'s duty."

Difficult Times

"I SUPPORTED the increase not from a personal point of view but because I knew that at previous times M.P.s who lost their seats had had very difficult times indeed, and because I think that it is wrong that men who have served their country should be subjected to such experiences."

Mr. Ernest Thurtle (Soc., Shoreditch): "A politician's career is very precarious. He never knows when he is going to be turned out. To attempt to find a new job at 45 or 50, or perhaps more, is pretty hopeless in these days, and if a middle-aged man has no resources to fall back on, his position may easily become somewhat desperate."

"Most M.P.s whose whole means are represented by their £400 a year find the money most inadequate, and in many cases have to deny themselves what might reasonably be considered essentials of life."

Mr. Tom Williams (Soc., Don Valley): "Any M.P. who has had to maintain a home in his own province and educate children will have found it difficult to manage on £400 a year."

"The cost of keeping in touch with a constituency is considerable in these days of social legislation, and correspondence is a substantial item in M.P.'s costs. Parliament-to-day is a legislative workshop, and an M.P. has little time for any other activity if he is to keep abreast of the many problems on which he needs to be informed. He has to spend most of his time in London, and, even with the greatest economy, it must be most difficult to make ends meet on £400."

Expensive

SIR Henry Fildes (Liberal National, Dumfriesshire): "In my own case £400 a year in no way meets the expenses contingent on my being an M.P. My salary does not contribute a penny towards my living in London. To run a constituency today is a very expensive matter."

"The increase in the number of constituents and the advance of social legislation have enlarged correspondence enormously. I employ a secretary—this is an absolutely necessary expense in my case, for my correspondence varies between 20 and 50 letters a day in the ordinary way, and sometimes runs to much more."

Social Life

"THEN a great deal of research is necessary if a constituency is to be properly served."

BULLS AND INNERS

From the Office Butts

Despite the heat of summer, Java continues its popularity as a tourist resort. Well, you can have a Ball good time there, anyhow.

Then there was the man who, tortured by the heat, said he would be quite willing to swap his prickly heat for a crop of chilblains.

Advertisement misprint: "Un-thinkable Bathing Costumes." Truth will out.

"Fall of Brunette," says headline. And some of our snappy young blondes also go astray at times.

One reason news by radio can't take the place of a newspaper is that you can't hunt it up afterwards to settle an argument.

Matched thieves stole a detective's badge whilst he was bathing. This sort of thing could, of course, be prevented if the detectives had their badges tattooed on their chests.

Then there was the doctor who worked up such a good practice that he could afford to tell an occasional patient that there was nothing wrong with him.

As an American commentator has put it, one of the best ways of achieving universal disarmament would be to build battle-ships by popular subscription.

There was much jollification and cracker-firing when a new coffin-shop opened in Wanchai a few days ago. Couldn't have done better if it had been a real, live business.

WASPS Earn Their STRIPES

WASPS are annoying creatures when they sting but how many people know their many useful services? I often wonder.

It was making careful note of the wasp when nesting that made known the secrets of paper making. For countless years the wasp was building her nest of thin sheets of parchment collected from the trees.

Of times I have watched the wasp at work. With her powerful jaws she bites off tiny pieces of decayed wood, which when massed to the right consistency is used to build little cells inside the site chosen for the nest. In these paper-lined cells the young wasps are reared.

During the summer months we often see wasps much larger than those which appear in great numbers in the first warm days of early spring. These are the queens, which were reared at the end of the previous season, and grown fat while hibernating during the long winter months. On awakening, the first duty of the queen is to seek out a home, which will most likely be a hole in a sunny bank.

Once the site is chosen she begins to search a countryside for decaying wood to build the paper cells. At first she must build alone, but as each cell is made an egg is laid, then after a few weeks she will have a number of helpers, who will carry on the work of gathering and masticating the decayed wood for more cells, while she contents herself by attending to the more important egg-laying. Thousands of eggs are laid in the cells which are made by her corps of workers.

With its gaudy yellow and black stripes we might liken the wasp to a little tiger, and that is what it really is, for it diligently searches the countryside for all manner of tiny insects, and as most of these are destructive creatures, it does a great deal of useful work for us.

Unlike the honey bee, which feeds her young with honey and pollen taken from flowers, the hungry growing wasps must be fed on animal food. Caterpillars are a favourite, and the slow-flying daddy-long-legs are easily caught, and are relished by her family. The grub of the daddy-long-legs is one of the most destructive worst foes for this creature lives just below the surface of the ground and eats at the valuable roots.

It is not advisable to encourage too prolific rearing of wasps in the countryside, but wise farmers appreciate the useful work they carry out, and welcome their incursions into his territory if their numbers do not increase, until they become a plague.

Cecil Rhodes

stituency is to be properly served at a time when people's problems are so many and complex. If one considers the deputations which have to be met and the support which an M.P. is expected to give to various efforts connected with the social life of his constituency, it is obvious that £400—reduced by taxation to £300 in many cases—is inadequate to cover the cost.

"I abstained from the vote on M.P.'s salaries because I think it is a bad and dangerous principle that M.P.s should vote money to themselves, but, if you accept the principle of paying M.P.s, I think a rise from £400 is necessary."

M.P.s, however, were much brighter yesterday. Their faces looked already £200 a year better off.

Children's Corner

Dear Kiddies,
Not quite so many entries came in for last week's Competition. What is more, only a small number of the competitors got all the correct names for the flowers. In the Senior Section there were only three correct solutions, and so the judging of these had to be based on the colouring. Best in this respect was the entry of Margaret Pearce (aged 14), 15 Gop Road, Happy Valley. In the Junior Section, Rodney Martin (aged 9), 33B Nathan Road,

Kowloon, wins. He had all the names correct, and, in addition, nicely coloured the picture.

In awarding Merit Certificates, I have only taken into account those who had all the flower names correct. This was the main point in the Competition, colouring being subsidiary. Here are the winners of Certificates:

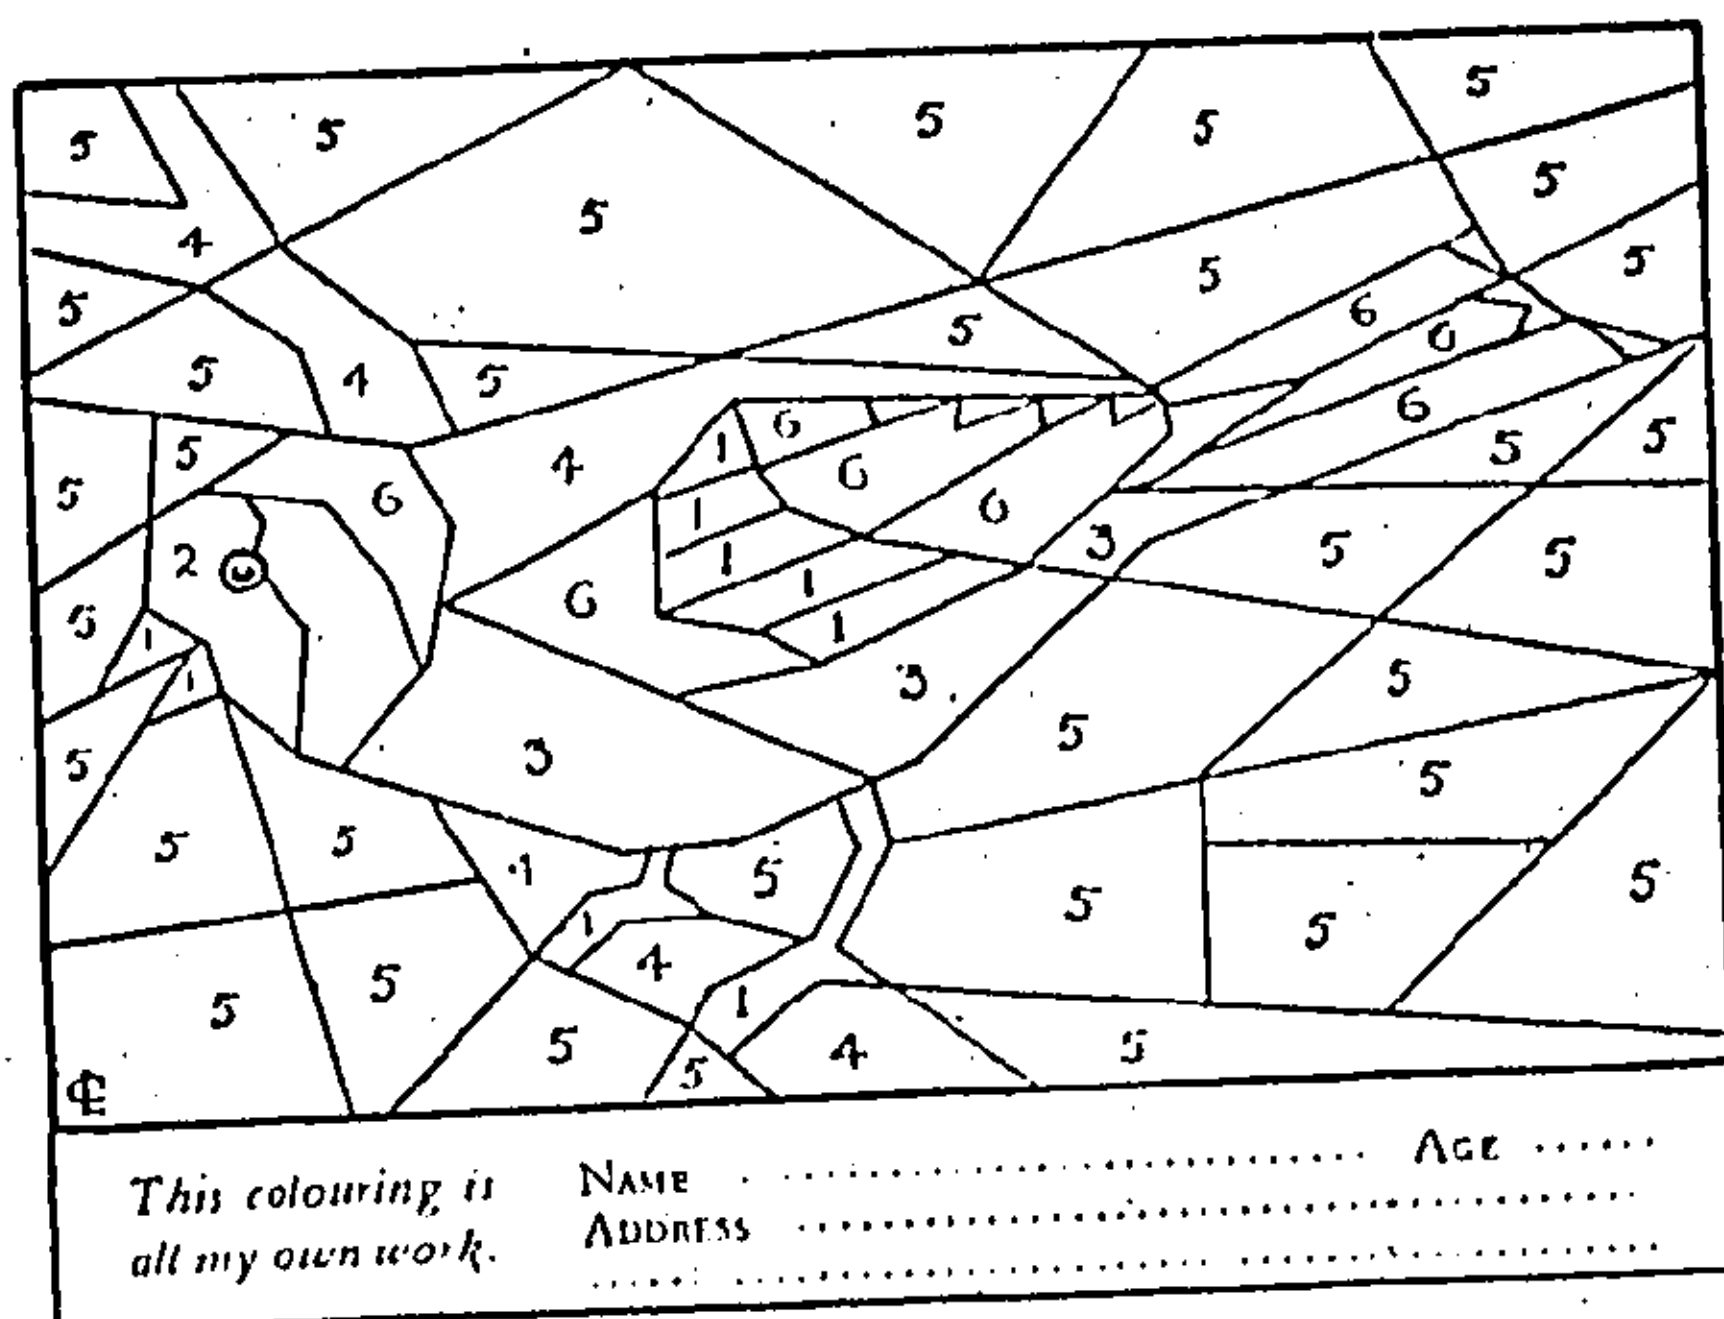

Senior: Jill Eager and Peter Venables.

Junior: Roy King, Nan Provan, Arthur Fisher, Margaret Venables. Although there were mistakes in the naming of the flowers, I should like to commend the following for good work in colouring:

Senior: Netta Macwilliam, Anthony Ruptis, Elizabeth Jones, Margie Alves, Fernando Alves, Cyril Geddis, Robert Lau, Ho Shuk-chun, Jean Kempton, Jean Grady, Margie Xavier, Antonina da Luz, Young Kit-wa, Mary FitzGerald.

And now, kiddies, here's a really most interesting colouring competition for this week. The picture shown looks a complete mystery; doesn't it? But if you colour it according to the following directions it will become a pretty picture. Colour all the spaces numbered 1 in Yellow, all those marked 2 Bright Red, the 3's Light Brown, the 4's Dark Brown, the 5's Pale Blue, and the 6's in Black. Spaces not numbered must be left white.

You will find, children, that the best work can be done if the picture is first cut out, pasted on a card or thick paper, and allowed to dry thoroughly before colouring. Either paints or crayons may be used. There will again be two prizes—one for children from 10 to 14, and the other for those under 10. Now, kiddies, do your very best, and send in your entries to reach me not later than 4 p.m. on Wednesday. Lots of love.

A VISIT TO SANDONIA

By Yacult Cooper

(This excellent "little children's story is written by Yacult Cooper, who will be remembered as having figured as a winner in the "Telegraph's" Children's Competition more than once. Yacult is now enjoying a lovely holiday at Weihaiwei.)

Jenny was digging a deep hole in the sand. She dug so much, that she decided to sit down and rest for a minute or two. When she was seated, she looked around for her Mummy. It was a beautiful day, with the sun riding high in the cloudless sky like a big golden penny. The little children were paddling, and from time to time she heard their shrieks of laughter. She was just hoping that her Mummy had gone to buy some ice cream, when she heard a voice exclaim: "I haven't seen such a fine day as this for years." She looked down and saw, sitting on the pile of sand she had dug out, a little creature.

"Please, who are you?" said Jenny politely. "I am a Sand Gnome; my name is Midge, and I live far away down under the sand," said he. "Oh, are you the only Sand Gnome in the world?" asked Jenny. "Good gracious, no, child! There are millions of us, and we live in a place called Sandonia," said Midge. "I wish you would tell me all about Sandonia," said Jenny. "I can't be bothered," said Midge, "but I'll take you there if you like." "Please do," said Jenny.

"Shut your eyes and say, 'Sand Gnome, Sand Gnome, take me to your sandy home,'" Jenny did so, and she immediately found herself to be very small—only two inches high and standing in front of a little elevator. The Sand Gnome stepped inside and opened the door for Jenny to get in. As soon as she was in, Midge pressed a knob, and they went down and down.

After five minutes the elevator stopped, and Jenny found herself in a little street. A little gnome like her companion said, "Now then where's your ticket, please?" Midge pulled out from his pocket a little square piece of card board. The ticket collector said, "All right pass along, now please, pass along."

They were being posted and pushed by many little Sand Gnomes all chattering excitedly. Jenny heard some of them saying, "I shall wear my pink skirt," or "Do you think I should buy another?" "Will green really go with blue?" and one little boy gnomed said, "Mummy, hope there will be lots of cake and jelly when we get home!" Then Midge said, "There is to be a ball at the Town Hall. I think it is just, staying here on, we had better go. How lovely!" said Jenny, and they set off walking towards the Town Hall.

When they reached the Town Hall they saw a pretty scene. The Sand Gnomes were dressed in pretty clothes and in a corner Jenny saw a little boy greedily eating ice cream. He thought, "Oh! I ought to go back for it. Mummy went to buy ice cream she will be looking for me." So she sat down, and he took her back to the elevator.

Midge told her a rhyme to say to make herself bigger when she arrived and then he bid her good-bye. Jenny stepped into the elevator and arrived on the sands just in time for tea.

There are no trumps. South leads, and North-South must win six of the seven tricks.

Solutions by first post, Wednesday, to "Bridge Problem", Hongkong Telegraph, Wyndham Street.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 17

South leads Jack of heart and North discards diamond 4. Neither East nor West must keep both clubs, one must keep both diamonds, and East must retain diamond queen; so West may discard a diamond and East a club.

South then leads heart 4, and West must play (1) a spade or (2) a diamond. In the event of (1), North plays diamond 9, and South on the third lead gives East the ace of spades, establishing two spade tricks for North and assuring North-South the remaining three tricks, whatever East leads. In the event of (2), North discards spade 4 and East must discard a spade or a second club, in either case, South's third lead of ♠ 2 Queen of clubs (North playing the spade 4), followed by the nine of spades, gives East the lead with only diamonds left to lead up to North, who wins two tricks.

MUST PLAY DIAMOND

If, at Trick One, West discards a club, then East must play a diamond. On the second heart lead West must discard a spade or a club. If the discard is a spade, North plays diamond 9 and South's third lead is the spade, and the ending is similar to one already described. If West's discard is a club, North plays the small spade and East must play a club. South's next lead is the diamond spade won by North's King, and with a spade North throws the lead to East, and South must win the two remaining tricks when East must lead clubs to him.

This covers most of the variations. An opening lead of anything but a trump is unsound. Correct solutions from T.H.L., "Emjay", T.P.G., Mrs. A.K., H.S., and "Senay".

WHO IS THIS?

HERE is one of the most highly-paid writers in the world, and—what is more important—one whose work has received the unstinted admiration of those best qualified to judge. He has often been described as an "author's author." His novels and plays have attained great popularity both in England and in America; but they have, perhaps, a special appeal to other writers, who delight in the artistry with which they are constructed and in their terse and vivid phraseology.

THEIR author intended originally to be a doctor, and graduated in medicine at St. Thomas's Hospital. His experience as a medical student has been turned to good account, particularly in his novel, "Of Human Bondage" published in 1915. He was then 41. But he had begun to write long before this, his first novel "Liza of Lambeth," having appeared eighteen years before. Of his many novels the best known, perhaps, is also an accomplished writer of short stories. For these he has gathered much first material in outlying portions of the world.

OF plays he has produced a number, nearly all of which have been commercially successful, while many have been adapted for the screen. All are characterised by a strong sense of "situation," by naturalness of dialogue, and, at times, by biting satire. They convey a strong sense of disillusionment with the post-war world, and find expression, not in moralising, but in the dramatic portrayal of hypocrisy and injustice. Who is he?

HOW TO DO IT

TWO tests are given. In each you can score 100. A description is given of a well-known person. It is written in three paragraphs. If you can identify him by the time you have read the first paragraph you score full marks; by the second 75; by the last 50. If you don't know then you fail and have to turn to Page Eleven for the answer. To emphasise the end of each paragraph the following one is printed in small type. Now carry on.

ANSWERS ON PAGE THREE

HERE is a man who, although not yet sixty, has long exercised considerable influence both in the realm of thought and in the conduct of affairs. The son of an Archbishop, he was born, as it were, a member of our ruling class, and proceeded to demonstrate, without delay, his gifts of leadership and his immense natural abilities. At 29, he was head of a great public school; at 40, he became a bishop. His tact, his balanced judgment, and his capacity for organisation, have made him one of the most powerful men in the country.

BORN in 1881, he was educated at Rugby and Balliol and began life as a lecturer in philosophy at Queen's College. He subsequently took orders and was a contributor to a volume of theological essays, "Foundation," which created a considerable stir before the war. Soon after he became, in rapid succession, Headmaster of Repton School; Rector of St. James's, Piccadilly; Canon of Westminster and Bishop of Manchester. His present appointment dates from 1929.

HIS interests in these various capacities have by no means been purely pastoral or administrative. He has written much on speculative theology and on the problem of Church and State, among his better-known books being "Essays in Christian Politics" and "Thoughts on Some Problems of the Day." He has also been one of the most active promoters of adult education. For a number of years he was President of the Workers' Educational Association. Who is he?

they had become engaged; and Mrs. Middlestone, against the advice of her solicitors, had made a will leaving her money to Smith-Dingo. She was the second woman who'd done that, as I told you, had been found dead in a railway tunnel. "What a nerve!" said Dumbell. "Wasn't it?" said Playfair. "But Smith-Dingo was a killer; there's nothing will deter men like that. We got on to him within eighteen hours of the murder, and I thought, for some time, he was going to defeat us. He admitted, of course, his association with the woman; denied any knowledge of the will made in his favour, denied that he'd seen her on the fatal day. Where had he been? He'd been off on business, in his own car. What business? Prospecting?"

"He did occasional deals in real estate; was looking out sites for bungalows. Could he prove any of this? No, he couldn't. On the other hand, could we, might he ask, disprove it? We were welcome to search his rooms, and his person—as, I need hardly say, we did. Smith-Dingo was a good actor. 'If only,' he said, in a choking voice, if only I'd accepted her invitation to go out with her yesterday! It's almost the first time I'd refused her—' And he positively succeeded—its a great gift. Dumbell—in forcing out a few manly tears."

Dumbell was impatient. "But how did you convict him, sir? No identification—no fingerprints in the car—did you get a confession or what?"

"No," said Playfair. "No confession. Smith-Dingo protested his innocence on the scaffold—that type always does. But the evidence against him was irrefragable. And, what is more, you can deduce, from what I've told you, what the most damning piece of evidence was. Just try to think it out, Dumbell."

What was the clue which led to Smith-Dingo's conviction? SOLUTION ON PAGE THREE

MALTWELL MURDER CASE

MR. WEBBLEY SMITH-DINGO was a killer," said Playfair, reviewing the Maltwell case.

"He had already been under suspicion when that affair occurred. And of a somewhat similar crime—though in that case his victim was thrown out of a train. In both the victim was an attractive woman and Smith-Dingo was after her money."

"I'm not clear about the Maltwell case," said Sergeant Dumbell. He was never sorry to find his superior in reminiscent mood. "One of these blaring car murders, wasn't it?" "That's right. And we were lucky to get Smith-Dingo. Let me tell you the facts."

The tragedy was discovered about seven one evening, in a lonely lane near the village of Maltwell. A wrecked car, on fire, with the body of a woman in it. I don't think the fire was intentional, for it inevitably drew attention to the crime; what Smith-Dingo had planned was charging down a steep incline, with the car wall at the bottom—the driver, presumably, having leapt for his life just as acceleration began.

The hand-brake, it was afterwards proved, had been tampered with, so that his victim had no sort of chance. . . . A horrible, callous murder.

"From the first there was no doubt that a crime had been committed," and they had the sense to call the Yard in at once."

"Fingerprints were found, I suppose?" said Dumbell, conscious that he was expected to be intelligent. "The criminal's fingerprints? No, none. The car yielded only the fingerprints of the victim. A Mrs. Middlestone she was, a widow, well-to-do, attractive young woman. We were lucky in identifying her at once."

"She had taken the car that morning out of a London garage. There was then nobody with her. Her murderer—as she thought, her best friend—had joined her somewhere on the road."

"But—this was the second piece of luck—we tracked down one witness who had seen them. They had stopped at Abbot's Cruteley, at the village post office, to buy petrol and cigarettes.

"The man was driving the car; George Greene, who ran the post office, had caught a fleeting glimpse of him. A big man, wearing dark glasses. He had remained in the car, absorbed in the study of a map. Mrs. Middlestone meanwhile got out, and asked for four gallons of petrol and a packet of gaspers. When it came to payment, neither of them had any change. The man opened his wallet and gave the lady a five-pound note. Greene, with some difficulty, produced the change. The cigarettes were handed to the driver—who, Greene noticed, was wearing gloves—and he lit one each for his passenger and himself. Then the car drove off."

"And Greene," said Dumbell, "was able to identify the driver?" "Not a bit of it," answered Playfair. "No; in this case the evidence, though conclusive, was purely circumstantial. That's why I think it's so interesting. Apart from the fact" (he added modestly) "that it was my job to piece it together."

Dumbell was looking puzzled. "How did you get a line on the criminal?"

"I'm coming to that," said Playfair. "That was easy. Once we'd found out who the victim was, the probable murderer was obvious. Mr. Webbley Smith-Dingo, of no fixed occupation, had been courting Mrs. Middlestone for some months."

"They'd been seen together in all sorts of places—restaurants, theatres, the seaside. Three weeks before

ROMANTIC FABLE OF THE 6th MOON FESTIVAL

THE AMAHS' PRAYER TO THE MYTHICAL GODDESS KWON-YAM

ONE of the commonest remarks made by the casual European observer is to the effect that life in the Far East appears at the first blush to be largely a succession of various gala events. Indeed, much might be said of the paucity of seasonal events in the solar calendar of the West; for, in comparison, every month in the incidentally have an astronomical origin, for it is on these occasions, so affirm the Chinese with evident truth, that "Old Sol" is wont to display his strength. The first event which usually falls about July 7 is stated to be merely a warning of the summer heat which is bound to follow, and, this heat is alleged to reach its climax on the 23rd of the month, for according to Chinese notions the weather after that date then begins to become more equable. In popular custom, the periods of the "Lesser and Greater Heats" are made the occasion for the partaking of various cooling drinks, one of them being prepared from a species of was-gourd (Cucur biternata) which the Chinese term tung-kwa or "winter melon." This vegetable is generally cooked in an abundance of fluid, and the resultant effusion is stated to be extremely efficacious in counteracting any ill effects which may arise from the excessive heat which is unfortunately a necessary concomitant of Hongkong's semi-tropical summer.

Famous South China

Dish

In Canton, there is offered in the restaurants at this season a specially prepared dish which is famous throughout all South China, and is, furthermore, one of the gustatory romances of the Cantonese epicure. This dish, which is incidentally termed tung-kwa-chung is prepared from one of these melons. The seeds are scooped out and the concavity filled with a plenitude of ingredients, amongst them being mushrooms, strips of dried bean-curd and a kind of edible fungus called muk-ji (Erda hispidula), which literally signifies "ears of trees." In fact, tung-kwa-chung is an excellent dish, and is one of the most famous of the many culinary wonders that emanate from the kitchens of Chinese chefs during the summer season. Truly, this is the season for indulgence in delectable dainties, but as the Chinese sagely remark: Sin-shue, Tan-shue, ho-shik lan chue—"In the periods of the Lesser and Greater Heats, one is very fond of eating but is really too lazy to do any cooking."

Twelfth Day Festival

On the 12th day of the sixth month (July 19th) is celebrated a minor festival called the anniversary day of the death of P'ang-tao. This worthy was a mythical person whose life was laid out on the antediluvian plan and who is fabled to have lived nearly 800 years. In fact, so well known is this personage that there is not a house-boy or amah in Hongkong who has never heard of him, and the name P'ang-tao is made the occasion of many jocular remarks, some of which do not strictly adhere to the limits of Chinese propriety.

However, the greatest day of the month is the fete of the Goddess of Mercy, which occurs on the 19th day of the 6th Moon (July 26). This is one of the most popular celebrations in the Chinese year, and is made the occasion, by the women-folk at least, of much preparation and the offering of incense and the reciting of special prayers. Kwoon-yam, as she is called in the vernacular, is the favourite deity of the women par excellence, and is the Chinese counterpart of Ardakitesvara of India. She is regarded as the idealisation of all that which is sweet and beautiful in women, and her chief duty is to listen to the pleadings of the unhappy and to soothe their troubles. Her temples are ex-

Romantic Fable

In the very popular version, she is represented as the daughter of Yuk-wong, "the Jade Emperor." This worthy disbelieved the pretences of his daughter that she possessed divine attributes and sought to test her in various ways. Upon one occasion, it is alleged he sent her to the river with a coarsely woven basket and told her to fetch water. The shrimps and tiny fish had pity upon her and entered the meshes in her basket thus rendering it water-tight, so that she could thus fetch water back to her irascible and obdurate parent. Upon another occasion, he demanded that she separate Chinese lunar year is literally crowded with festivals which are celebrated by the masses with appropriate ceremonies and which on occasion descend to the most picturesque and even carnivalesque fanfare. Of these months, the sixth moon in the Chinese calendar, which roughly corresponds to our month of July, is amongst the most interesting, and, moreover, its fete days are celebrated even in Hongkong with an extraordinary degree of fervour by the average Child of Cathay.

Two of the festivals, if such they may be termed, and which adventitiously occur in mid-summer, are the so-called Sin-shue and Tan-shue, i.e. "The Periods of Lesser and Greater Heat," which

HOW JEALOUS are you?

- 1 Have you ever gone through the pockets of your husband's suits?
- 2 Do you read his letters if he leaves them about?
- 3 Have you ever opened a letter addressed to him and marked "Personal"?
- 4 Do you feel uneasy when he talks to a friend about a woman whom you don't know?
- 5 Are you anxious when he goes out a lot in the evenings to parties that he tells you are "Business"?
- 6 When he comes home, do you look to see if he has powder on his shoulder, rouge on his handkerchief, or a strange perfume on his tie?
- 7 Do you get cold feet when he introduces a woman to you and says "She's a childhood friend"?
- 8 During an evening out, do you stare without ceasing at the woman he's talking to, when you don't know her?
- 9 When you are dancing and he remarks on a pretty woman, do you feel obliged to say, "If you want to dance with her, don't bother about me"?
- 10 Do you insist that he should dance with her again, saying, "She has a pretty nose, but her hands are hideous"?
- 11 Or do you say, "She is lovely, and so stupid"?
- 12 Do you question his friends, as if by chance, to find out if he was out with them, as he told you?
- 13 In front of his friends, do you pretend to be indifferent, assuring them that "he is quite free I'm not jealous at all"?
- 14 Do you ring up his office at times when he's told you he'll be there?
- 15 Do you ask him often about the names, colour of eyes, type of women that he knew before he met you?

Two people can play this game. Take it in turns to ask each other the questions; you must answer them at once, without thinking them over. The person who is asking the questions does the marking; 0 if you answer "No" without hesitation; 1 if you answer "No, but I might"; 2 if you answer "Yes or no, it depends"; 3 if you answer "Yes, certainly."

Add up the numbers you've got at the end. Any number between 0 and 6 means you're not jealous at all. Take care; that's sometimes dangerous. If you marks are between 7 and 30, you are normally jealous. But if the marks add up to anything between 31 and 45 take yourself in hand. You suffer from a morbid, exaggerated jealousy which will cause you a lot of trouble.

A Lay Sermon

By Hugh Redwood

WE shall be wrong if we imagine that Jesus "flared up" at Peter. The whole point of his words lies in the fact that they were not directed at Peter but at Peter's deadly foe.

He gave the key to the Kingdom to his man-Matthew XVI, 23 n. g. Later, "Satan" hath desired to have you," He told him at the Last Supper. Satan was seeking him now, to have, to hold and to use. Satan was speaking with Peter's lips—Jesus recognised the idiom and gave the Tempter the same reply as on a previous occasion—and Peter was therefore in mortal peril. Instantly Jesus acted. Don't you see what He did when He uttered that "get thee behind Me"? He separated the Devil and Peter and placed Himself between them.

The action was, and is, wholly characteristic. We should make far fewer blunders if only we remembered that "He, to rescue me from danger, interposed His Precious Blood." Thus we sing; and many and many a time, when we fret at obstacles placed in our path, He is keeping us just as He saved us, recognizing the Tempter in wait, and interposing Himself again.

May good fortune from both the East and the West come into my hands

May all the desires of my heart be fulfilled
May the "Noble Gentleman" and "Green Horse" charms be efficacious
May I enjoy good health
May my relationship with every one be harmonious
And may I be able to keep my situation for a long, long time."

Such in brief are some of the more common customs prevailing amongst the Chinese masses at the occasion of the sixth moon.

In these prayers it is the custom for the supplicant to insert her own surname as Wong, Lei, etc., as the case may be. If she is unmarried, she adds the words "fa-nui" (flower maiden) after her name, if married then she appends the term "shan-nui" (one, whose body belongs to another), and finally if she is sworn to perpetual chastity, she adds "ching-nui" (a virgin) after her surname.

The Maltwell Murder Case

SOLUTION

The evidence that convicted Smith-Dingo was the discovery, in his possession, of a cigarette package, and of four pound notes given in change at Abbot's Crutcheley, all of which clearly bore the fingerprints, both of George Greene, and of the murdered woman.

"You're very wise to ask that, Mrs. Bartlett. And I'll tell you the way in which you can help them most."

"Make sure of internal cleanliness by giving them a regular weekly dose of California Syrup of Figs." This is especially important with children at the critical age, like yours, who are working hard for their exams. There's nothing pulls them down more than poison in the system—it affects their general health making them liable to catch any infection that's going about.

"In my experience 'California Syrup of Figs' does far more than simply cleanse the system. It acts quite naturally, and gently and keeps the digestion healthy and active. 'I find 'California Syrup of Figs' equally good for adults, especially for women. As a matter of fact, Mrs. Bartlett, use it myself and recommend you to adopt it for the whole family."

FOOD COST 10 PER CENT. UP IN A YEAR

Manufacturers Blame Rearmament.

OFFICIAL FIGURES SHOW BIG INCREASES

THE cost of living has, according to the Ministry of Labour, risen by 8 per cent. during the year, while the cost of food alone has risen by 10 per cent. in the same time.

Food and clothing, rent and heating, household furnishings, and even holidays, are not only costing more than they did a year ago, but more than a few weeks ago.

Housewives all over the country are feeling the pinch, and in some cases seaside landladies are writing to notify their clients of a 5 per cent. increase in their charges as a result of the increased cost of food.

Ministry of Labour figures for food prices now compared with 1936 are:

	1936	1937
Beef	1 1/2	1 3/4
Mutton	1 1/2	1 3/4
Bacon	1 1/2	1 3/4
Flour (7lb.)	1 1/2	1 3/4
Bread (4lb.)	0 10	0 11
Potatoes (7lb.)	0 10	0 11

All these foods also which doctors and Ministry of Health advise should be eaten as an antidote to malnutrition show—with the one exception of milk—a considerable price increase.

BUTTER, CHEESE FRUIT

Fresh butter (officially) is up 3 p. a pound, although in many shops it is up 1d. and 2d. as compared with last year. Cheese is up 1 1/2d. and margarine 1d. Fruit and vegetables are also costing more.

In thousands of households where the pennies have to be counted carefully, housewives are now buying margarine instead of butter.

Go into any big store and talk to the buyers. You will find their desks stacked with letters from manufacturing firms announcing further increases of anything from 5 per cent. to 20 per cent. in cost for all future orders.

One firm, a chair manufacturer, explains that the price of larch has advanced by 40 per cent., springs by 60 per cent., and fibre and hair by 25 per cent.

PRESSING DEMANDS

The increases are greatest in those articles which contain metal or wool, for the reason that the great Powers cannot get enough metal for their new shells, tanks and aeroplanes, while the wool supplies have been run short by the demand for uniforms for the growing armies and air forces of the world.

Here are a few examples: The dustbin which cost 4s. 6d. a little over a year ago costs 6s. 11d. to-day; the garden incinerator which was 7s. 6d. is now 10s. 9d. The aluminium fish fryer which was 7s. 6d. is now 8s. 9d., mainly because of the increased value of the tin fish basket it contains.

The galvanised bucket which was 6d. is now 1s. 0 1/2d., and the garden spade which was 3s. 11d. last year is now 4s. 6d.

A glance at the prices of metal explains these increases. Tin, which was £100 a ton last July is £250 a ton to-day; spelter £23 10s. as compared with £15 7s.

DEARER HOUSES, TOO

A pair of single bed all wool Yorkshire blankets which were sold at 16s. 11d. to housewives who restocked as recently as last February, cost 27s. 6d. now.

Cotton and linen goods have increased over the whole range by 5 per cent. to 15 per cent.

There is an average increase in the cost of carpets of about 30 per cent. For instance, Imperial Admire which was 8s. 6d. a yard 12 months ago is now 11s. 9d. and the 12ft. x 6ft. Indian carpet which sold at £5 0s. 0d. costs £7 12s. 0d.

The cost of building materials has soared so that the working class house now costs £30 more to build which means higher rents and bigger repayment charges.

Schoolgirl Ringleader Raided Home 4 Times

Dorchester, July 5.

SIX schoolgirls, aged between nine and twelve—all stated to be Sunday-school pupils—stood stern-faced before Sherborne juvenile court magistrates to-day while their parents sobbed and pleaded on their behalf.

One girl, aged ten, stated to be the ringleader, admitted four charges of housebreaking and two of stealing bananas, strawberries, and flowers from a fruiterer's cart and garden. She and her sister aged twelve—who said all she did was to receive 1s. 2d., stolen from a house—were sent to an approved school until they are fifteen.

The other four—two of them aged nine, one aged ten, the fourth aged eleven—admitted helping the ringleader to steal strawberries, and

Aren't Women Beasts

A NEW sex war has started. Against women.

Out of every three women who take the official motor driving test one fails. Ministry of Transport figures show that was the fate of 577 out of the last 1,493 who tried.

They mainly blame the women examiners. They are "too efficient," the L-driver women say. Driving school officials state women dread being taught or examined by women.

FEARED HARM IF HE TOLD POLICE

London, July 5.

Frederick George Murphy, fifty-three-year-old ex-ship's fireman, said yesterday that the reason he did not go to the police when he found a woman's body in a cellar was because he "had been in trouble with them before."

His trial for the murder of Rosina Field, aged forty-nine, at Islington Green on Coronation Day, May 12, will be continued at the Old Bailey to-day. Lord Chief Justice Bewart will sum up.

"I had made accusations against the police," said Murphy in the witness-box. "They were up against me. They would do me harm at the first opportunity."

He explained that on one occasion a man told him that a detective-inspector had accepted a £50 bribe. He made a statement at Scotland-yard about it, and a Bow councillor saw Mr. George Lansbury.

"I went to the Home Office about it," said Murphy. "They said, 'What business have you to come here?' I went outside and smashed a window."

Murphy said that he tried to commit suicide because he thought the police would not believe his story.

Murphy claimed that for nearly an hour during the time when the murder was alleged to have been committed, he was in a public house.

HIS BEARD CLIPPED — Political enemies of Professor Aurelio Manrique, candidate for San Luis Potosi for deputy in the Mexican Congress, not only attacked and beat him, but added indignity by clipping off his beard. During his campaign speech in Mexico City, but here he is rewarded with a warm embrace from his wife. He was a National Library director.

Duchess Of Windsor Is The World's Best-Dressed Woman

DUCHESS OF KENT IS GIVEN THIRD PLACE

(By Mary Fentress)

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris.

The Duchess of Windsor to-day was named the world's best dressed woman for 1937.

The Baltimore celebrity, who was married last June to England's abdicated King Edward, headed a list of 10 internationally known social figures whose infallible taste in clothes gave them a lead over hundreds of prominent applicants in a fashion poll held for the United Press by leading Paris stylists.

The 10 best dressed women of all nationalities were listed as follows:

1. Duchess of Windsor.
2. Princess Karam of Kapurthala.
3. Duchess of Kent.
4. Mrs. Harrison Williams.
5. Senora Martinez Ho.
6. Begum Aga Khan.
7. Baroness Von Krieger.
8. Mrs. Gilbert Miller.
9. Princess Jean Panitowsky.
10. Princess Eugene de Rothschild.

Mrs. Harrison Williams, prominent New York hostess who headed last year's list as well as those for 1933 and 1934, was fourth this time—and several titled women—notably the Duchess of Leeds, Princess Charles Murat, the Honourable Daisy Fellowes—were eliminated entirely.

It was estimated that these 10 women spent a total of $300,000 to $500,000 in the past year, while each of the 10 spent anywhere from $20,000 to $100,000. This sum includes every article of wearing apparel including furs, underwear, accessories, small jewellery purchases as well as the large expense of beauty treatments, hairdressing and massage.

SELECTION NO SURPRISE

The selection of the Duchess of Windsor as the world's best dressed woman who was no surprise, for in the two months prior to her marriage she bought nearly 100 different costumes from four of the leading Paris couturiers and purchased 40 hats. Her trousseau of 48 ensembles came from Mainbocher.

Knowing that blue is her most becoming colour, the Duchess of Windsor buses her entire wardrobe on various shades of blue.

The greater part of her underwear is blue and her favourite jewel is the sapphire. She has a slight figure and therefore avoids flamboyant or eccentric clothes which would appear ridiculous on a woman of her small stature. Her blue eyes are her best feature and she dresses to make the most of them.

Second in the list is the little Princess Karam of Kapurthala. Dark-haired, small and slender with large black eyes, she is one of the few high caste Indian princesses to dress in European clothes. Until two years ago she wore the Indian Sari, but now discards them when she is in European society. She is usually dressed in a vivid shade of blue but wears navy, black, cerise and white also. Her dressmaker is Mainbocher.

DUCHESS OF KENT

The Duchess of Kent, at the top of the list in 1935, comes third this year. Dressed by Molyneux, she is the undisputed style leader in England and is acknowledged to be the most fashionable member of royalty. She favours no particular colour, but wears rather tailored daytime clothes and only wears exaggerated clothes at night. When she finds a costume that suits her, she wears it over and over. One of her spring costumes, a red and white print ensemble worn with a red halo-brim straw hat, she has worn to eight official functions.

Mrs. Williams, blonde blue eyed New Yorker, affects brilliant colours, wears luxurious furs and expensive jewellery. She wears black for evening and brightens her gowns with cocktail jackets of multi-coloured sequins. She bought five of the hand-made sequin jackets at one fashion house this spring.

Senora Martinez De Ho, tall slender, dark South American beauty, dresses chiefly in black and white in the winter and wears yellow, blue or dull rose in summer.

The Begum Aga Khan, former French milliner who married the wealthy Indian potentate some years ago, is considered France's best dressed woman. Her jewels are among the most famous in the world. Blonde and blue-eyed Baroness Von Krieger is considered the most beautiful and the best dressed woman in Holland. Dressed by Molyneux, she has no particular colour taste but indulges her fancy for rich, luxurious furs. Her street clothes are simple and tailored but her evening gowns are lavish and theatrical.

Mrs. Gilbert Miller, wife of the New York theatrical producer, has long been considered one of the world's best dressed women. She shops for her clothes in New York, Paris and London and usually is gowned in black. Typically American in appearance, Mrs. Miller is tall, dark and slender.

Princess Jean Panitowsky is the wife of a Russian nobleman but is of Mexican birth. She wears rather eccentric clothes, usually in some shade of blue. Tenth on the list is the American-born Baroness Eugene de Rothschild who was hostess to the Duke of Windsor, after his abdication, at the Castle Enzfeld outside Vienna, she is the former Kitty Spottswood of Virginia. Is tall, slately and blonde, wears gray, black, white and all shades of green. She is famed for her beautiful jewelry. Baroness De Rothschild, who divides her time between Paris and Vienna, is dressed by Molyneux and Jean Patou.

TRAGIC WIVES OF THE BRYMBO INFERNO

TOWN IS ENGULFED IN GRIEF

"Our Men Cannot Be Dead"

(By Donald Stokes)

Chesterton, Staffs, July 5.

THERE were ghosts standing with the hushed crowd that gathered at the Brymbo pithead to-day, ghosts of the 200 men who perished in the 1916 disaster at Minney Colliery, sister pit to Brymbo.

And there were ghosts wandering in the deserted fairground at Chesterton—shades of the men who have died in this latest disaster.

But for the Brymbo explosion Chesterton would have been a town of laughter and jostling crowds on the occasion of the Chesterton annual carnival.

Three queens were to have been crowned here to-day. There was to have been a baby show, sports competitions and a procession.

Now Chesterton is a hamlet of whispers.

An inferno is burning 2,400 feet below. Desperate efforts are being made to stifle the flames, but it will be some days before they are put out.

REPORTED DEAD IN ERROR
If 49 year old Richard Harrison of Halmer End had not been sick he, too, would probably have been in the list of victims.

His name actually appeared in the list of dead to-day, but it was afterwards corrected to H. W. Seaton, who lived a few doors away from him.

When I spoke to Mr. Harrison he told me that he thought the mistake was due to another man using his lamp.

"To-day somebody called to console with my wife on my death. I at once sent a friend to the colliery to point out the mistake," he told me.

Of the distraught wives who have been waiting for news none is more tragic than Mrs. John Harvey of Walsanton.

Her husband is among the dead, but she refuses to believe it.

Her mind is filled with three previous tragedies which have happened in the last three months.

First her 12-year-old son was killed while cycling. Then, her brother was killed in a road accident, and a few days afterwards her brother-in-law died.

"My husband cannot be dead," she said. "He will come back." And Mrs. William Pepper, too, refuses to believe her husband was dead.

"It's impossible," she sobbed. Some people cannot yet be told of the tragedy. One is a woman to whom a child was born yesterday.

The Lord Mayor of Stoke-on-Trent, Councillor J. A. Dale, told me

6,000,000 Rents In The Balance

HEALTH Ministry officials are debating the future of the Rent Restriction Act.

A law of vital importance to 6,000,000 householders, the Act expires next year. The Government has to decide on one of three courses:

1.—To allow the Act to lapse, decontrolling all houses. This would allow landlords to charge what rents they like, and evict tenants at a week's notice.

2.—To renew the Act in its present form, restricting rents for working-class houses.

3.—To compromise, and decontrol all but the smallest houses occupied by the poorest people.

THE RIVAL CASES
It is believed that the third choice is likely to be the one ultimately decided on.

If that is so, 2,000,000 or 3,000,000 tenants may find themselves confronted with demands for increased rent.

Landlords are pointing out that 1,500,000 houses have been built in the last four years; that the shortage no longer prevails; and that they should be allowed to put up rents.

The tenants argue there are still millions whose wages are so low that they cannot afford to commit themselves to the modern idea of the purchase of a house.

These people, they insist, must have controlled rents.

to-day that he intends to organise a fund for the relatives of the victims immediately.

Mr. Sydney Myott, Mayor of Newcastle-under-Lyme, has also opened a relief fund.

UNABLE TO MOVE A LIMB

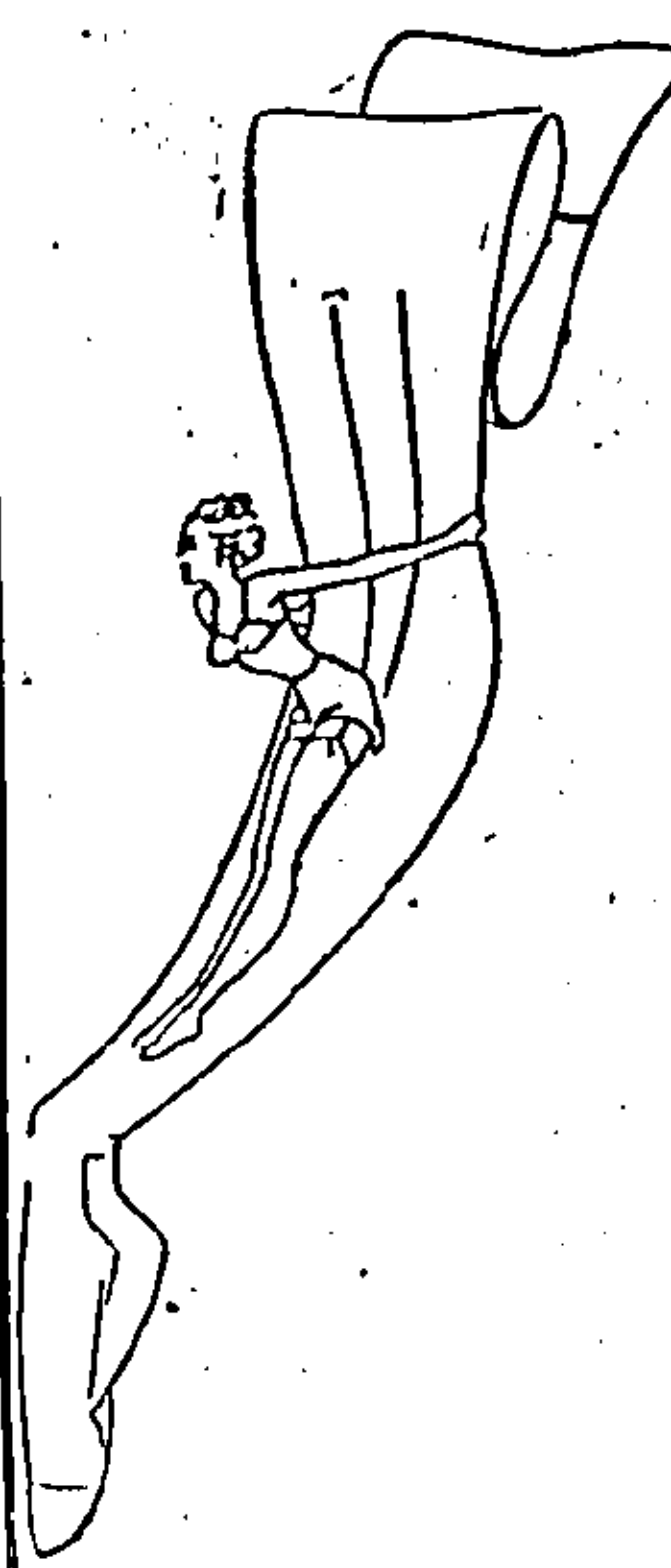

But, Kruschen Gave Her "A New Lease of Life"

She had suffered so long that she was resigning herself to being a permanent invalid. That was the state of this woman when she was persuaded to try Kruschen Salts. To-day she has taken on a new lease of life. Read this letter from her daughter:—

"Five years ago my mother was terribly crippled with rheumatoid arthritis. At one time she was scarcely able to move a limb. She lost all faith in medicines, until we persuaded her to give Kruschen Salts a trial. She has kept to it ever since, and never misses her daily dose. To-day, she can do nearly all her own work, and go out and about the same as before she was ill. Yet at one time she was resigning herself to being an invalid. Kruschen has given her a new lease of life."—(Mrs.) K.J.P.

Rheumatic conditions are the result of an excess of uric acid in the body. Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients of these Salts assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channels.

Football League Reform At Last

(By "Veritas")

Although the method of achieving the desired result was somewhat Gilbertian, the Hong-kong Football Association Council last evening succeeded in effecting the radical changes in the constitution of the league which have long been advocated by a section of the game's followers.

The coming season will find each of the three league divisions composed of twelve teams, but that arrangement is expected to enable the necessity for overlapping into May. It was Mr. Jock McKelvie who boldly advocated this measure, but he did not get it put through until after a somewhat amusing interlude of false vote-counting.

Mr. Chan Ying-nung proposed an amendment that the first division be composed of 13 teams, but that if Chinese Athletic, whose entry had not up to that time been received, did not enter, the division should comprise twelve teams.

After the vote Mr. Walter Pryde (Chairman) declared the amendment carried by five to four, but subsequently it was pointed out that the vote of Mr. D. Carter, who had seconded the original proposition, had not been included.

Thus it was necessary to agree on re-opening the discussion, and another vote taken when this time the proposition that the first division comprise twelve teams was carried by six to five.

A similar proposition applying to the second and third divisions was also carried.

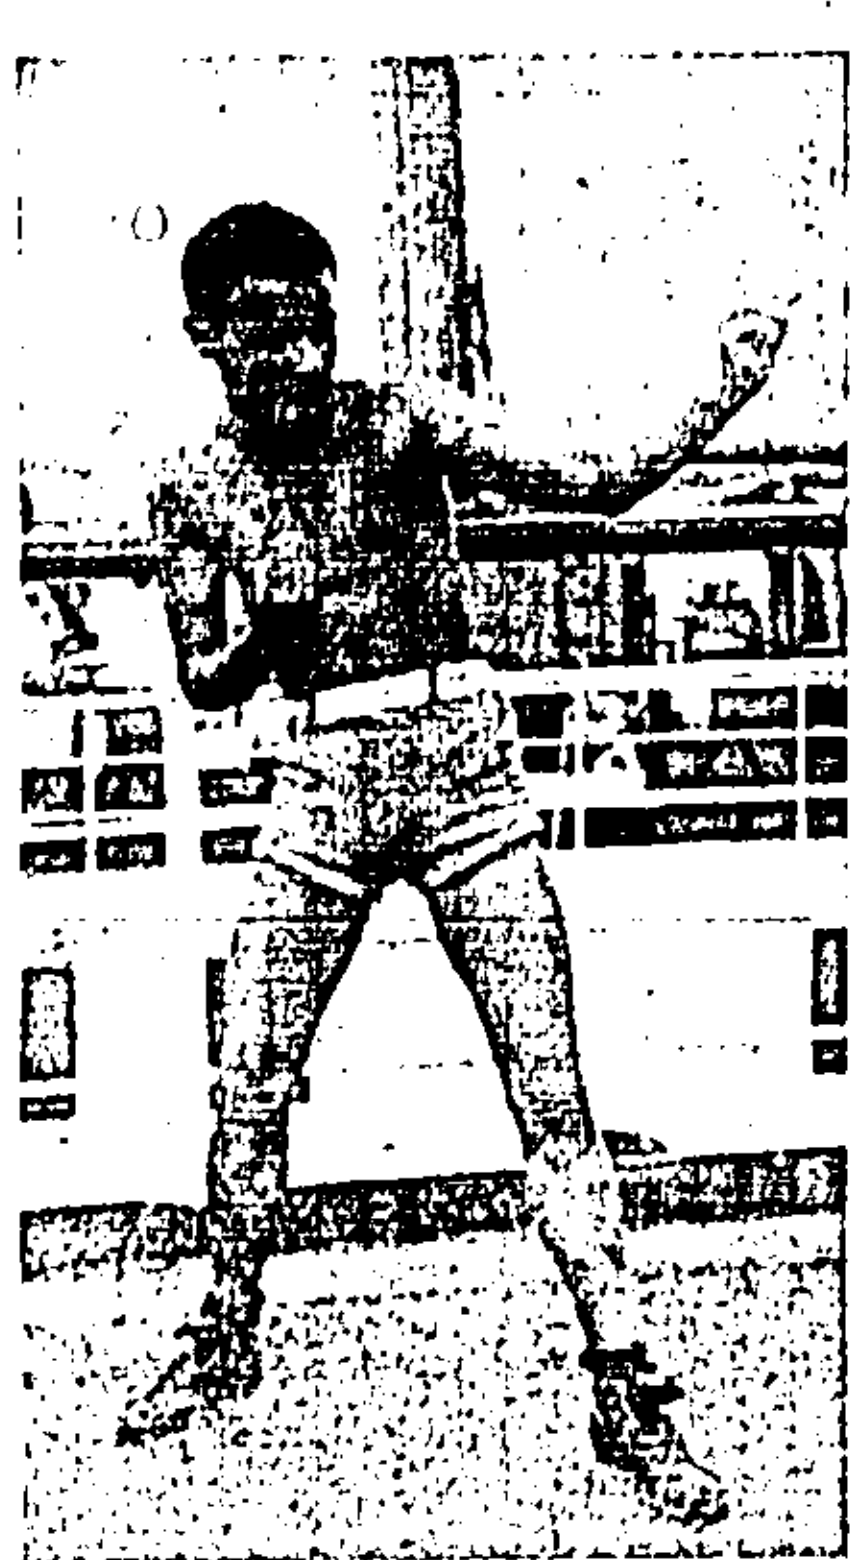

AFTER LIVELY DISCUSSION

The various propositions were not put through without some lively discussion. Mr. McKelvie said he was speaking from the experience of last year and previous years when he insisted upon the necessity for reducing the number of teams in the first division.

Mr. Pryde also pointed out that one of their aims was to reduce the competitive side of football in the Colony. The game had tended to become too competitive.

On the other hand Mr. Chan Ying-nung and Mr. Wong Ka-tsun felt that it was hardly fair to exclude a club of such long standing as the Chinese Athletic without giving that club a chance to take part in the league. The fact that the club had sent in no entry might mean that it had been temporarily forgotten.

Eventually, however, it was shown that by limiting the number of teams to twelve, the Association did not necessarily exclude Chinese Athletic. Beyond this question, the only important matters on the agenda were the election of officials and sub-committees. Mr. D. Carter was re-elected hon. treasurer, the Council deciding not to engage a full-time official for this work. Mr. Greig was appointed assistant hon. secretary.

There Will Be Trouble In The Old Town To-night

When Our Boxing Boys Get Together

With everybody promising each other a thoroughly good thrashing, to-night's programme of boxing matches at the Po Hing Theatre should provide some of the most entertaining displays of brawls seen in the Colony for a long time.

Florencio Mac Slong, the Manila fighter, is certain he can, and will, knock Young Aromin into the middle of next week (or was it next month?). "Bud" Whelan thinks Fus Owens is just asking for a lot of unnecessary trouble in matching his skill against him in the featherweight class, and "Iron" Bux, jr., whose picture you see above, has announced that he will give Fus Hosen a 24-hours headache with one of his speciality punches.

The boys, anyhow, are eager enough, and those who like to see some fast milling and mixing should make a point of visiting the Po Hing Theatre to-night.

Touring Footballers Beaten

Sydney, July 30. Australia's footballers defeated the F.A. touring amateur side 5-4 in the first Test. The Australians were brilliant individually. Later they improved their combination and thereafter the English goal was incessantly bombarded. One reason for this success was the inability of Joy, the tourists' pivot, to hold their centre-forward.

Thornton was outstanding in the England side when they made desperate attempts to equalise, while others who stood out were Eastham (2 goals), Matthews (2), Finch and Leek.—Reader.

GRAND BATTING DISPLAY

Yorks Nearly Champions

SUSSEX DEFEATED

Sussex have now very little hope of winning the county cricket championship. To-day they were beaten by an innings, whereas Yorkshire, who head the championship table, consolidated their position by beating Essex by ten wickets.

Sussex made a brave but futile effort to avoid outright defeat, but Lancashire obtained a grip from which they refused to relax. Cox scored a great century in the following, but the man of the match was Paynter, who, by hitting up 322, beat the brilliant innings by R. H. Moore of 316, and thus enjoys the distinction of making the best score of the season.

Paynter's innings, in fact, is the highest individual score compiled in first class English cricket since Bill Ashdown's 334 against Essex in 1934.

In addition to Paynter, Washbrook scored 103 and Oldfield 92, these being the chief contributions to Lancashire's score of 640 for 8 declared, which is incidentally the highest total of the season.

Yorkshire's victory was obtained after a low-scoring game in which the two players to shine were Bowes, who took 7 for 56 and Sutcliffe, who scored 83.

ANOTHER HAMMOND

Walter Hammond helped himself to another century and helped Gloucester to beat Glamorgan. Goddard followed up his Test match achievement by taking 13 wickets for 99 runs.

After putting themselves in a winning position, Kent lost their grasp on the match against Notts and finally a drawn game was recorded. Sunnucks (162), Leslie Todd (100 not out) and Ames (98) were biggest contributors to Kent's score of 467 for 5 declared. Lancashire responded firstly with 109, Keeton playing a grand innings of 90 not out, but after following on they completely mastered the Kent attack and at the close had scored 468 for 9. Hardstaff hit up 146 and Gunn 135.

New Zealanders obtained a fine victory over Surrey by 142 runs. The match was featured by tall scoring. Donnelly made 144, Page 90, Gregory 106, Sandham 83 and Watts 85.

Here are the results and leading performances as cabled by Reuter.

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP

Yorkshire (279 and 69/0) beat Essex (184 and 103) by ten wickets.

Lancashire (640/8 dec.) beat Sussex (340 and 295) by an innings and five runs.

COTTON WINS THE GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

R. A. WHITCOMBE BEATEN BY TWO STROKES

(By Charles Buchanan)

Carnarvon, July 10. For the second time in four years Henry Cotton has won the Open Golf Championship. In 1934 he was successful at St. George's with a record aggregate of 263; now his total was 290, yet I rate it the better performance of the two.

The course has been lengthened considerably since Tommy Armour won here with six fewer strokes six years ago, and conditions during the week have been as bad as they possibly could have been.

Cotton stands out as the best player in the world and he will probably emphasise the fact by defeating Denmore Shute, American match-play champion, when they meet in 72-holes match at Walton Heath on Monday and Tuesday.

The only slice of luck that happened to Cotton to-day was that he played eight holes of his last round in fine weather, while his rivals, for the main part, had to struggle through heavy rain. Yet, I do not think the rain played any part in his success; he maintained his form in fair weather or foul—a Colossus striding to victory.

MEMORABLE SIGHT

It will be a long time before I forget the sight at the 18th as Cotton played the last of the 72 holes. At least 15,000 spectators lined the sides of the fairway and behind the green, apparently careless of the drenching rain which tumbled down on their many-coloured umbrellas.

As it happened the champion bunkered his second shot and took 5, but the crowd gave him a tremendous cheer, for they knew he had broken Reggie Whitcombe's total by two strokes and was unlikely to be caught.

It was the finish of one of the most remarkable rounds I have ever seen. Cotton started it, knowing that he had to do 72 to lead the field; yet he played as if he were indulging in a friendly game on his own course and even assisted in marshalling the crowd into their places before taking his shots.

He made only one slip in an outward half of 35, and the homeward journey he missed a putt of 2ft. at the 15th; otherwise every shot went to the right place. Seven times he got down in two from off the green, thus beating the Americans at their own game.

The Americans were eclipsed so thoroughly that only Nelson and Dudley, of their Ryder Cup team, found a place among the eight leaders. They offered no excuses, for several of them informed me that they were quite accustomed to conditions such as prevailed to-day. They were at home either in wind or rain; in their own words, their failure was unaccountable and inexcusable.

THE DELUGE

At one time late in the afternoon there was a possibility that the honour so worthily won by Cotton would be snatched, at any rate, temporarily, from his grasp. After ceasing for an hour, rain commenced to fall heavily again and some of the greens were water-logged. Alliss and Branch found the first green almost covered with pools and refused to putt. They sent back word to the clubhouse. The R. and A. committee held a hurried conference and dispatched men out with brushes and beams to clear away the water. Later they went out to inspect the course themselves and anxiously minutes passed before we received the tidings that the championship would be completed.

This championship of 1937 will go down in history as a golfing epic—a story of three gallant Englishmen fighting for the title bravely and stoically, in weather that would have daunted the stoutest heart.

WASHED OUT OF THE TITLE

First we had Reggie Whitcombe, who had the worst luck of all. He played throughout the rain, while others had a break of nearly an hour. He was literally washed out of the title.

Starting the last round with a two strokes lead, he went very well until he missed a 2ft. putt at the sixth. On the next tee the rain-soaked club slipped from his hands and the ball travelled only a few yards. That mishap brought a 6 and, though he persevered to the end, he could never atone for the loss of the strokes.

Then came Padgham, more confident than I have seen him for some time. He reached the turn in 36 and stood on the 14th tee one under four and only a stroke behind Whitcombe. There, however, he began to feel the strain and finally finished with a 7 at the 18th, owing to visiting the waters of the Barry Burn.

Last of the four, for Cotton intervened, came Charles Whitcombe, who, just as he started, ran into the worst of the weather. He knew he had to go round in 71 to win. He began extremely well with five 4s, but at the long sixth owing to bunker trouble gave him a jolt. He recovered and reached the turn in 36, still with a chance.

Another 6 at the 14th owing to a wild drive, saw the end of his chances and the title taken from his family.

Before the end we were given another thrill in this amazing day. It was provided by Charles Lacey, elder brother of Arthur, our Ryder Cup player, who has been over here from America on holiday. After returning 70 in the morning he threatened to overhaul Cotton, for he reached the turn in 36 and when he stood on the 17th tee, one under 4, he wanted two 2s to tie.

That naturally was beyond him, but he had the satisfaction of finishing third, in between the brothers Whitcombe.

If he had had any luck with his putting, Reggie Whitcombe would have been in an unassailable position before the last round. Several putts during his third round hung on the lip of the hole in tantalising manner. His best shot in the championship was the 10th—a glorious spoon shot, from a cupped lie, on to the green, and he holed the putt for a three.

WONDERFUL FINISHES

In this third round brother Charles did the last five holes in one under four, including three at the 13th, 15th and 16th. It was a wonderful finish, but Cotton excelled it. Cotton was three over four at the 16th, but he played the last three holes in 3, 4, 3. At the last, a par 5, he put an iron shot 6ft. from the pin and holed the putt.

A pretty wedding was celebrated at the Pea's Church on Thursday, when Flight Lieutenant F. A. Swaffer, M.B.E., R.A.F.O., was married to Miss Constance Crapnell, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Crapnell. Above is the bridal group. (Photo: Ming Yuen Studio).

A married couple from Hazelton, British Columbia, recently made the distance of 4,700 miles to Halifax in Nova Scotia with dog-sledge in order to visit some friends. The sledge was equipped with wheels and the dogs were furnished with leather shoes to protect their paws.—The strange procession created something of a sensation wherever it appeared.

The Commander of the Peace Preservation Corps issued a manifest this morning declaring that "Chinese will not fight against Chinese." He then ordered a surprise attack on the Japanese troops, who resisted stubbornly.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

VARSITY DAMAGED

Tientsin, July 30. Four Japanese planes concentrated on bombing the Nankai University for the second time this afternoon. The library of the University was struck by several incendiary bombs and caught fire. Other buildings of the University were also badly damaged by Japanese artillery fire from the Japanese barracks at Hankowang.—Hua Nan News.

SWATOW ORDER

Canton, July 30. It is reported here that all Japanese residents in Swatow have been notified by the Japanese Consul there that they should evacuate before August 2.

The evacuation order is generally believed to be connected with the declaration made by the Commander of the Japanese Third Naval Squadron to-day that Japanese naval forces may take action in South China if the Central Government does not suppress the anti-Japanese movement there.

Meanwhile Chinese troops in Swatow and the immediate vicinity have received urgent instructions from Canton ordering them to stand by and to report the movements of the Japanese warships off the coast.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Tram And Car Collide

Fortunate Escape In Mishap

A traffic accident involving a collision between a tram car and a private motor car, which but for the fact that both vehicles were travelling at moderate speed might have had serious consequences, occurred at about 9.30 this morning in Queen's Road East.

Tram No. 52 was travelling from east to west when, just outside the R. A. O. C. Depot, private car No. 913, going in the same direction, suddenly swerved into its path. The distance between the vehicles when the car got on to the tramlines was so small that though the driver applied his emergency brake there was no possible chance of pulling up and the tram hit the car, pulling her broadside on.

Damage was done to the rear and front mud-guards and rear tyre of the car and to the stepping-board and front part of the tram.

At the time the accident occurred the tram was full of passengers and these received a shaking-up. The car, which is a Fiat two-seater coupe, was being driven by a Chinese, with a European lady passenger.

It is thought that the reason for the driver of the car swerving was that, in rounding the slight bend, he saw a few workmen in his way. There was no space to get past on the left, so as he was going rather faster than the tram he thought he could get clear on the right.

NEW METHOD OF SPURIOUS COIN MANUFACTURE ROYAL MINT REQUEST FOR SECRECY ROPE ENTRY TO DEN IN LOFT

Officials of the Royal Mint asked, through the Common Serjeant (Mr. Cecil Whiteley, K.C.), at the Old Bailey recently that a new process of making counterfeit coins should not be disclosed in court.

They considered that their evidence with regard to the process would not be in the public interest.

Stephen Amos, aged 30, a fitter, of Clifton, was found guilty of uttering and making counterfeit coins and possessing apparatus for coining. Sentence was postponed.

Mr. Patrick Devlin (prosecuting) said that observation was kept on Amos and other people, because counterfeit money was being passed at a greyhound stadium. Subsequently the police entered a garage which Amos rented at Goulton-road, Clifton, and in a loft they found certain machinery, copper foil, acids, and counterfeit money. There were no moulds.

"The process used was a novel and very ingenious one," counsel added.

Amos declared that he was asked by two men to rent a garage. The men visited the garage about three times a week, and climbed into the loft by means of a rope, which they pulled up after them. He was forbidden to enter. They had used him as a "cat-spaw."

CEMETERY EXTENSION

It is notified that His Excellency the Governor-in-Council has authorised as a place to be used as a Chinese cemetery, and to form an extension to the existing Chinese cemetery known as the Chai Wan Cemetery, the piece of land containing about 16.79 acres, situated between Chai Wan and Tylam Gap.

given the status of a belligerent, then they would delay withdrawing volunteers indefinitely.

Lord Plymouth said it was essential that the Committee agree to the co-relation in time of the granting of belligerent rights and the withdrawal of volunteers. He asked the German, Italian, Russian and Portuguese representatives to let him know whether or not they agreed.

He suggested the Committee should adjourn until a date next week while delegates get in touch with their Governments.—Reuter.

NO MEETING CALLED

London, July 30.

It now appears that no further meeting of the Non-Intervention Committee's sub-committee, in whose hands the British neutrality scheme has been, has yet been summoned. But it may be held some time next week.—Reuter.

REQUEST DECLINED

London, July 30.

Declining the request of the Opposition leader and Mr. Lloyd George that he should pledge the Government to summon Parliament in any event before the grant of belligerent rights to the Spanish insurgents, the Foreign Secretary made his statement in the House of Commons adjournment debate to-day: "There is a pledge I can give. So far as the present British plan before the Non-Intervention Committee is concerned, we do not propose to agree to any major modifications of it."

Twice before in the course of a short speech, Mr. Eden declared that the British proposals for restoring frontier control in Spain, securing the withdrawal of foreign nationals from the two armies and the grant of limited belligerent rights to the two parties must stand or fall as a whole. The British Government could not accept any modifications which would upset the balance of the scheme. He emphasised, however, the desire and intention of His Majesty's Government to persevere with the policy of non-intervention so long as other Powers would co-operate.

Mr. Eden confessed at the same time that he found it difficult to see how the International Committee failed to reach agreement on the British plan, the policy of non-intervention could be saved. If it collapsed, that would create an entirely new situation, in which the British attitude must depend on circumstances and considerations they could not now foresee.

MAY CALL PARLIAMENT

His Majesty's Government would certainly, in such an event, desire to consult with the French Government on the policy to be pursued. If, in His Majesty's Government's view, the situation was so serious as to warrant the summoning of Parliament, they would avail themselves of the provision in the adjournment motion enabling the Speaker to call the Commons in case of emergency. But he—Mr. Eden—would not have them under the desire of other nations to prevent the breakdown of non-intervention.

The British Government, at any rate, contemplated no revolutionary change of policy. They would continue to work for the main objectives they had worked for all along—localisation of the Spanish conflict and maintenance of European peace.—British Wireless.

TYPHOON WARNING

The Manila Observatory reports at 6.40 a.m. to-day that there is a typhoon in about Long, 128, Lat. 21, inclining northwards. The position is north-east of the Balintang Channel.

MR. EDEN'S HOLIDAY

London, July 30. During the next three weeks, while Mr. Eden, Foreign Secretary, is away on holiday in the country, Lord Halifax, Lord President of the Council, will be in charge of the Foreign Office.—British Wireless.
